Plant managers discuss safety of local facilities

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Managers of two local plants utilizing hazardous materials said recurrence of a disaster similar to the one in Bhopal, India is not likely here.

The poison gas leak from a fertilizer plant has claimed the lives of nearly 2,000 Indians and raised the question in the minds of U.S. citizens who live near plants utilizing poisonous gases: Could it happen here?

Both David Settle, manager of Dupont's Delisle Plant on the north shore of Bay St. Louis in Harrison County and Leo Kowal, manager of the Borg-Warner facility in Hancock County's Port Bienville Industrial Park, said because of strong safety precautions and the difference in the chemicals utilized, the likelihood of a similar accident is remote.

Dupont is recognized in the industrial world for providing safe working conditions for employees and is generally considered 50 to 60 times safer than other industries in the country, Settle said.

"What that means is if we are taking care of our employees, we are also taking care of the community," he said.

Kowal said the difference in the materials used is why an accident like the one in Bhopal could not happen at Borg-Warner.

"We utilize a totally different category of chemicals," he said. "Handling the raw materials we use in the manufacture of ADS plastics, styrene and acryloyl, is like handling gasoline."

"Styrene and acryloyl are dangerous with flames, but obviously there are no flames allowed in the area," he said.

"Borg-Warner facilities throughout the country and in other nations have used these materials for more than 50 years and there have been no problems and no fatalities," Kowal said.

Using the proper equipment and maintaining the equipment, is the way to prevent accidents, he said.

Kowal added that at the Hancock plant the materials are stored in self-contained refrigerated tanks.

"The containment area will hold the contents of the tank if there is a leak," he said.

Settle says the entire Dupont facility was designed with fail-safe features to prevent such an accident.

"The design factor for this plant included a risk analysis for accidents that could only happen once in 10,000 years," he said.

Settle said the plant has a built-in system of detectors around the perimeter of the facility that continually analyzes the atmosphere and will automatically shut down the plant in case of an accident.

Dupont uses chlorine gas at the Delisle plant in the production of titanium dioxide.

Settle added that Dupont refuses to sell anything they make to buyers worldwide unless the buyer can properly use and store the product.

"We also work closely with the local Civil Defense so they will know immediately how to react to an emergency in the plant and have worked out plans to follow in case of an accident," Settle added.

Settle added that as an extra safety precaution, Dupont had purchased 2,220 acres for a 198-acre plant so there would be an environmental buffer zone.

Settle said he believes that the tragedy that occurred in India has probably set industry back 25 years.

"We here at Dupont are concerned about it and want to continue to assure people that everything is being done to be sure that nothing like that will ever happen here," he said.

Settle said the only reportable leak at the plant was in April 1980 during the construction phase of the plant. The leak was confined to one area and there were no long term results, he said.

"It was actually not a failure in the system but an operator's error, and there have been no serious releases since then, he said.

FINAL REHEARSAL—Putting the finishing touches on their weekend presentation of an original holiday ballet entitled "The Toy Shop" adapted by Sharon Lolacano of Bay St. Louis from "The Carnival of The Animals" by Saint-Saens and "The Nutcracker" by Tchaikovsky are elves, from left, Janel Ricca, Melanie Cuevas, Stacie Comeaux and Bahiyah Schwabacher; Santa, Scott Comeaux; and doll, Heather Philo, center. "Toy Shop" will be presented at 7 p.m. Saturday at St. Augustine Seminary Gymnasium in Bay St. Louis with proceeds to benefit the Bay-Waveland

Junior Auxiliary. Proceeds from a 2:30 p.m. Sunday presentation at Jeff Davis Junior College Auditorium on Debuys Road north of Pass Road in Gulfport will benefit the Harrison County Heart Association. Volunteer firemen will collect toys at the gymnasium door Saturday night for the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund. In addition, the Junior Auxiliary will award a Cabbage Patch Doll at the Saturday night performance. (Photo by Jimmy Lolacano)

Loss of funding could hurt county, cities

By DENA BISNETTE

The possibility of federal budget cuts in revenue sharing and grant programs pose a threat to Hancock County and its municipalities, officials say.

A recently publicized order by President Ronald Reagan that his cabinet trim federal spending by $34 billion through the elimination or cutting of domestic programs includes tentative approval for the elimination of revenue sharing, a program heavily relied upon by Hancock County's supervisors.

According to Chancery Clerk Mike Necaise, the county has been using 73 percent of its revenue sharing funds for road and bridge repairs.

"Losing revenue sharing could hurt this county tremendously. If the government dropped in here tomorrow and said there would be no more revenue sharing funds, it would cripple the county," Necaise said.

Necaise said the supervisors have anticipated cuts in the funding, which started at about $800,000 per year in 1979 and is expected to go down to $400,000 per year during the next fiscal year. The county is presently receiving $431,000.

"If we make it through this year, we'll have to start looking at doing without those funds," Necaise explained.

He said the only alternatives to using revenue sharing funds is cutting services or raising taxes.

"The cost of running the government is getting higher and higher but the main objective is still to provide the most services for the lowest price."

"If we had to make a cut it would probably have to be an overall cut for the entire county. I don't think road and bridge funds could handle all that," Necaise said.

He also said that the possibility of cuts in Community Development Block Grants and other programs could hurt the county because the board has applied for and used several grants in recent years.

However, he said cuts in grants would not do as much harm as elimination of the revenue sharing program.

The situation is reversed with the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, which stand to lose more from cuts in grant programs than from the loss of revenue sharing.

"A loss in revenue sharing will hurt Bay St. Louis, but not as much as other cities our size," said Mayor Larry Bennett.

"Over the past few years we have prepared ourselves for something like this by planning to use all our revenue sharing for capital outlay, but some of the other small cities use it for salaries," he said.

He said cuts in the grant program could "hurt the city a great deal," especially since Bay St. Louis has applied for $400,000 to continue its gas line renovation program.

Current grant programs underway in the city include a housing rehabilitation program and previous grants have been used to finance sewage, water and gas system extensions.

Waveland currently gets $46,000 in revenue sharing funds and uses it to pay for lights on its major streets and U.S.-90, Mayor John Longo Jr. reported.

"If we couldn't get any more block grants things could get tough," Longo commented. "We average a couple $100,000 per year on grants and I'd say we probably have the highest per capita income from them in the state."

Longo said grants to Waveland are mostly used for neighborhood improvements. He said they have been harder to obtain since the federal government was taken over by a Republican administration in 1980, but explained that prior to that year

Waveland received over $10 million in grants during one six-year period.

Longo is also the chairman of the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Board, which recently received a grant for improvements in sewage treatment in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area, as well as parts of the county.

Only the grant to pay for the first phase of the project, improvements at the Bay St. Louis sewage lagoon and the Waveland wastewater treatment plant, has actually been obtained.

"I don't think we'll have any real problem with that, because I feel the project meets the needs of Hancock County so well that it is a very high priority," Longo said.

However, he said if further grants could not be obtained, the project would have to be stopped until some way of funding it is found.

He said local funds could probably operate the system, but only if the construction was completed prior to discontinuation of federal subsidies for sewage systems.

RETIREMENT—Assistant Bay St. Louis Schools Superintendent Donald Caldwell, who will retire Dec. 21 after more than 31 years with the school district, is congratulated by his successor, Bay High Principal Robert Magee.

Magee to replace Caldwell as assistant superintendent

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Acting on the recommendation of Superintendent J. D. McCulloch, the Bay St. Louis Municipal School Board approved the appointment of Robert Magee as assistant superintendent.

Magee who is currently serving his 15th year as principal of Bay Senior High will assume his new duties in January following the retirement of Donald Caldwell.

A graduate of the University of Mississippi and the University of Southern Mississippi, Magee holds bachelor's and master's degree in science.

Magee has served as principal of both North Bay Elementary and Bay High Schools. He was also a high school science teacher.

He will serve as assistant for the remainder of the 1984-85 school year, McCulloch said. School trustees will make administrative appointments for the 1985-86 year in February.

Also at the meeting Tom Demboski, representative of the Bay Area Youth Soccer organization, addressed the members on the possibility of soccer becoming a varsity sport at the high school.

Demboski told the board that there are approximately 400 children from Hancock County playing soccer with BAYS and that local teams dominated the southern district playoffs last year.

"You have a lot of fine young athletes coming into high school age who need a varsity high school soccer program to bridge the gap between

Two fired former Coast Electric employees lost their bid in an appeal before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit Court last week in a suit against the company which was dismissed in a May Federal Court decision.

Former Coast Electric employees David Wiggins and Gerald Saucier filed the suit in the U.S. District Court in Gulfport in May of 1983, charging they were fired from the utility company to cover up fraud. The plaintiffs, Wiggins and Saucier, were asking for reinstatement to their jobs, $1.2 million in damages for alleged denial of due process and $1 million for a stockholders' derivative action for the association.

In May 1984, U.S. District Judge Walter Nixon dismissed the suit against Coast Electric for lack of jurisdiction in the matter, and his decision was appealed by Saucier and Wiggins in the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Judge Nixon's decision was upheld in the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals on Dec. 4, 1984 by Judges Rubin, Randall and Tate, who stated, "...We again find no error in the ruling..."

The lawsuit had reportedly charged that prior to plaintiffs' discharge, Coast Electric had become the target of an investigation by the Rural Electrification Administration for irregularities in the conduct of the corporation's operations and activities.

Henry Thomas, general manager of Coast Electric at the time the suit was filed, said that the charge was completely untrue, that the "investigation" referred to was part of REA's regular program of auditing work.

The audit took place during a two-week period beginning July 12, 1982, and Thomas referred to it as "the second of 97 Office of Inspector General audits, that I am aware of, and there may have been more."

Following both Wiggins' and Saucier's firing, Thomas said he wrote REA and requested that representatives be sent to review all charges and allegations against himself and other employees.

Thomas said they found no basis for the allegations. Wiggins had worked for the company for 11 years and Saucier for 14. Both had jobs as staking technicians, according to Thomas.

Coast Electric was represented by attorneys James N. Compton and Carter O. Blase, of the law firm of Bryan, Nelson, Allen, Schroeder and Compton of Biloxi, and Michael D. Haas, of Haas and Haas of Bay St. Louis.

Ann Clark Lazzara, Bay St. Louis attorney represented Saucier and Wiggins.

Waveland car crash kills youth

BY DENA BLISSETTE

An Alabama youth was killed early Sunday morning when his vehicle ran off Nicholson Avenue near U.S.-90 and hit a fence and several trees.

According to Hancock County Coroner Harold Stiglet, Warren C. Grant III of York, Ala., was declared dead from multiple injuries at the accident scene at about 2 a.m. Sunday.

A passenger in Grant's vehicle, Robert J. Hoffman, was injured and was transported to Hancock General Hospital. He was later transferred to Gulfport Memorial Hospital where he was in critical but stable condition Wednesday, a Memorial Hospital spokesman reported.

Waveland Police Department is investigating the accident. In addition, Stiglet called a coroner's inquest and said Wednesday morning that a witness had indicated that Grant apparently lost control of the car as it crossed U.S.-90.

Stiglet said the accident was the tenth automobile fatality in Hancock County during 1984.

Trespass hearing delayed

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Proceedings on the $200 million lawsuit against the City of Bay St. Louis were indefinitely postponed last week.

Attorney for the city, Walter Phillips said the plaintiffs, residents of the annexed area bordered by Washington, Old Spanish Trail, Seube and Waveland city limits, agreed to the continuation while they study the plan offered by the city for extending city utility services in the area.

Phillips said that both he and the plaintiff's attorney, Herbert Wilson, believe that even if the matter went to trial, all the court would do is order the city to do the work.

"The city has already formulated the plan for the extension of the services and the first steps have been taken," Phillips added.

In city court, the hearing for Nathan Barber, minister of the First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis, and Dr. Henry Maggio of Bay St. Louis, a psychiatrist with offices in Gulfport, was delayed until Jan. 9.

Barber and Maggio were arrested Oct. 26 near the New Woman Medical Center on U.S.-90 where they were reportedly picketing in protest of abortions provided by the clinic.

Property owner Jay Trich filed trespassing on private property charges against both Barber and Maggio.

This is the second time the hearing has been continued.

Government membership in chambers okay, auditor's office says

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Mississippi State Auditor's Office this week reported local governmental agency membership in chambers of commerce is not prohibited.

Assistant State Auditor Jerry Nash said in a telephone interview from Jackson Tuesday that "civic clubs" do not necessarily include local chambers of commerce.

Civic clubs are now included among agencies to which government boards may not lawfully pay dues with public funds, according to the State Auditor's office.

"Counties or municipalities are authorized to spend money to advertise the county's resources," Nash explained.

If the particular board involved decides that paying dues to the chamber of commerce will help promote the county, then such payments are authorized, Nash explained.

John Mason, recently elected 1985 president of the chamber, said that the chamber officers have contacted the state auditor's office about the confusion over public contributions.

The auditor's office instructed the chamber to outline all of its activities in a letter, which Mason said was mailed Wednesday afternoon.

If the auditors find that public contributions can not be used for some activities, the chamber could possibly continue to accept such contributions and channel them into activities that are authorized by the state auditor, he said.

The amount of contributions from the county and its municipalities totals about $27,000, Mason explained.

The remainder of the funding for the chamber's $55,000 budget comes from dues paid by businesses and individuals rather than public officials, he added.

Local governments are not sure whether they are still authorized to pay dues to the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

The cause of the uncertainty is an ongoing crackdown on city and county expenditures by the office of State Auditor Ray Mabius.

Mabius recently circulated a memorandum which outlines expenditures no longer authorized by the state or limited by the state.

Among these expenditures are coffee for anyone other than jurors, personal use of a city or county vehicle by a city or county official, travel expenses for spouses of officials and dues for civic clubs.

Officials of some local boards are in the process of obtaining written opinions on whether or not they can continue to contribute to the chamber.

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, for example, plans to request an attorney general's opinion on whether the commission is allowed to pay chamber of commerce dues.

The commission has paid chamber dues in the past and its members want to continue to do so. When payment came up for consideration at Monday's meeting, however, the commissioners questioned whether they are still authorized to contribute to the chamber and discussed the possibility of instead paying individual dues for its director, James DeBlanc.

Action on the $300 payment has been postponed until commission attorney Gerald Gex has obtained the opinion.

The city of Bay St. Louis contributes $250 per month to the chamber. "We feel the payment is authorized but we're going to get something in writing from the attorney general's office," he said Wednesday.

He added that he does not expect an answer to the city's inquiry until after Jan. 1.

Waveland is in a similar position because the city contributes $200 per month to the chamber.

The county, according to Chancery Clerk Mike Necaise, makes its contribution to the chamber through ad valorem taxes.

Necaise said the board does not pay any dues, annual or monthly, to the chamber and added that so far the contributions from ad valorem taxes had not been questioned.

During the last fiscal year, the county's contribution totalled about $20,870, Necaise reported.

What do you do when payday's in a week, but that TV's on sale today?

Just take out your checkbook and write yourself a loan, with HandyLine.

It's easy. There are no special checks to use. No credit cards. No identification cards.

You just write a regular Hancock Bank check for what you need. And we'll cover it.

For any purchase. For any amount, up to your pre-approved credit limit.

With HandyLine, you don't have to come in to the bank to get a loan. You just write a regular check, and you've got a loan at Hancock Bank.

HandyLine helps you in 5 ways.

How you use your HandyLine of credit is up to you:

1. Use it as a short-term loan: to advance yourself some money before payday.
2. Use it for longer-term loans: to make a major purchase and then pay it off in monthly installments.

3. Use it in emergencies: as a cash reserve for unexpected car repairs, medical bills — whenever you need cash in a hurry.

4. Use it as overdraft protection: it automatically covers all overdrafts and keeps you from ever having to pay overdraft penalties again.

5. Use it to consolidate your bills: go on and pay all your creditors. Then, instead of a lot of bills coming in all through the month, you'll receive a single HandyLine bill in your monthly bank statement.

Be your own loan officer.

Once you're approved for HandyLine, and your line of credit is established, you take charge.

You decide how much to borrow. Without having to answer any questions. Or fill out any forms.

You never even have to come in to the bank, if you don't want to. You can handle all of your HandyLine matters by mail.

You decide when to pay your money back. All we require is that you pay at least 1/20 of your total balance each month.

No annual fee to pay.

There's no yearly or monthly charge to have HandyLine. The only money you pay is the monthly interest on your unpaid balance.

And there's no time limit on using the money, either. You can let it sit there for years if you like, and it'll cost you absolutely nothing.

It's good just knowing that money's there if you ever need it.

Also available: Secured HandyLines for loans up to $25,000.

Regular "unsecured" HandyLines are available with credit limits of up to $5,000.

But you can also have a much larger limit — up to $25,000 — with HandyLine's secured line of credit.

This type of HandyLine is secured by the equity in your home, a certificate of deposit, or by some other type of collateral.

It's great for individuals and small businesses who want to buy equipment, make home improvements, or take advantage of investment opportunities.

Get your money in cash. 24 hours a day.

You can use any of our 12 HandyBanks to get your HandyLine money in cash 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

And using the HandyBank, you can also make payments to your HandyLine account, or even check the balance available to you on your HandyLine of credit.

Call to get your application.

Applying for HandyLine couldn't be easier. Our simple 1-page application is just 7 1/2 inches long and takes a matter of minutes to complete.

Return it by mail and we'll get back to you right away, with information on your own personal HandyLine of credit.

Call us at your nearest branch of Hancock Bank and we'll put a HandyLine application in the mail to you today.

Former Bay band director resigns post

Glen Page, Stone High School band director and former Bay High band director, has resigned his position at the Wiggins school.

"He was given a choice," said Stone principal Henry Rath, "of resigning or being suspended. He chose to resign."

Page's resignation was effective Friday, Dec. 7.

Rath declined comment on whether Page's resignation is the result of a February arrest alleged for indecent exposure.

Gulfport Police Department records show Page, 30, was arrested Feb. 2 just after midnight at the Gulfport Small Craft Harbor and charged with a misdemeanor offense of 'indecent exposure.'

The arresting officer alleges he observed Page driving near a bus terminal. The officer reports he followed Page to the harbor where Page allegedly donned jogging pants and a shirt.

The report indicates Page posted a $168 bond through Broadus Bonding Co. and later pled no contest to the charges on March 16.

This year it seemed we had much color in our trees in November and early December.

Many folks have commented to us on how they thought this year's colors were the best in many seasons.

The late arrival of a heavy frost may have attributed to the many colors at one time and we were able to note them all at once.

There are several perfectly shaped Christmas trees about town, but there is one problem, the needles are now beginning to fall. Cypress trees are the ones we are talking about.

Christmas decorations are beginning to appear at local merchants and residences in the area.

The arrival of Santa is less than two weeks from now and many folks still have some shopping to do.

We are hoping everyone will Shop-at-Home for their Christmas gifts.

A person can purchase just about anything in Hancock County, as our large and small merchants started the shopping season with good supplies.

Shopping-at-Home helps us all in so many ways.

Drunken, drugged drivers threat to law-abiding citizens

Special attention is being focused on the threat and potential danger that drunken and drugged drivers are to law-abiding drivers and pedestrians in Mississippi.

"If drunken and drugged drivers had a communicable illness, we would more than likely have an epidemic in Mississippi," said Public Safety Commissioner James L. Roberts Jr.

"It's time that the small portion of the 1.7 million licensed drivers in this state who abuse drugs and alcohol realize exactly what they are risking."

"What we need in Mississippi is a vehicular homicide statute that deals with deaths on the highways separate from the statute under the Implied Consent Law, which deals only with drivers under the influence of alcohol or other substances," the commissioner said.

"A 21 percent increase in DUI citations issued by the Mississippi Highway Patrol and other law enforcement agencies has been recorded thus far in 1984. There were 26,122 DUI citations issued January through November in 1983 compared to 33,021 issued from January through November of 1984."

"Some of the people in this category are facing manslaughter and negligent homicide charges because they were involved in accidents while under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

"Another segment of drivers are now former drivers because their licenses have been suspended for one, two or three years or for an indefinite time depending on the number of DUI charges accumulated in a five-year period," Roberts explained.

"For the first time in their lives, some drivers have spent time in jail because of a DUI charge. Others have participated in one of the Mississippi Alcohol Safety Education Program (MASEP) schools throughout the state," Roberts added.

Special attention is being called to this group of drivers in conjunction with Governor Bill Allain proclaiming the week of Dec. 9-15 as "Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week" in Mississippi.

"We strongly support Governor Allain's efforts to make the public aware of this ever-increasing and life threatening problem," Roberts said.

"As commissioner of public safety I can assure the motoring public that drugged or drunken drivers in Mississippi will not have an easy time. This agency is dedicated to protecting life and property and that includes protection from irresponsible drivers," he said.

Diets enriched with plant products reduce cancer risk

Several organizations have now concluded that scientific data on the relationship between diet and cancer are strong enough to warrant the development of dietary guidelines to lower cancer risk.

Dr. T. Colin Campbell, senior science advisor to the American Institute for Cancer Research reports available data "strongly suggest that a diet enriched in plant products reduces cancer risk," said Dr. Campbell, a cancer researcher and professor of nutritional biochemistry at Cornell University.

Cancer risk, he said, "increases with high intake of dietary fat and protein, and low intakes of food rich in vitamin C, vitamin A (as beta carotene), vitamin E and dietary fiber."

Dr. Campbell's status report on diet, nutrition and cancer summarized the studies that have been undertaken since the first major conference on the subject was held in 1975.

One of the most exhaustive of the studies, completed by the U.S. National Academy of Sciences in 1982, found enough of a link to "formulate interim dietary guidelines that are both consistent with good nutritional practices and likely to reduce the risk of cancer," said Dr. Campbell, who served on the NAS committee responsible for the report.

He said that of those guidelines, "the two that will have the most likely impact on consumers in the marketplace were the recommendations: 1) to reduce dietary fat intake from the current level of 40 percent to 30 percent of total caloric intake, and 2) to emphasize the importance of including fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereal products in the daily diet."

Among the research activities currently being funded by the institute and other organizations are studies on vitamins A, C, and E and the trace mineral selenium on various population groups; a survey of hypotheses on the relationships between lifestyle factors and cancer incidence; and a study of the effect of multiple dietary risk factors on selected cancers in the People's Republic of China.

At this point, Campbell said, there appears to be consistent evidence within various studies indicating a positive relationship between nutrition and cancer.

"Within the coming decade, we hope conclusive data will enable the American public to make the appropriate modifications in their dietary practices with confidence to reduce cancer risk," he added.

Cutting veterans' health care won't save a nickel, says DAV

Trial balloons—asserting that federal outlays could be reduced substantially through reductions in Veterans Administration (VA) medical programs—have been floated by some in the Reagan White House.

"The truth of the matter is that such reductions could end up costing America's taxpayers considerably more than the present tab," countered Charles E. Joeckel of the 900,000-member Disabled American Veterans (DAV).

White House notions on how much could be saved are based on the findings of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, the so-called Grace Commission. A report issued by that commission stated that "costs for patient care in government facilities are 18 percent higher than those for private hospitals."

The Grace Commission's case was built on a set of statistics that has already—and repeatedly—been repudiated as based upon faulty data-gathering techniques. In addition, those studying the VA health system for the Grace Commission came from the private sector, and the DAV believes that their private sector bias influenced their findings.

A joint Congressional Budget Office/General Accounting Office study of the Grace Commission's recommendations focused on the report's flawed statistics and found that its cost-savings estimates could not even be analyzed with the available information. Further GAO said some savings estimates were made by Grace Commission members who either misread or misinterpreted GAO data when drawing their conclusions.

"More reliable, though perhaps not as conclusive as we'd like, are VA statistics that showed the agency's care is 18 to 23 percent cheaper than the private sector per episode of care," said Joeckel, who lost both legs in Vietnam and serves as the DAV's national director of services.

A graphic illustration of Joeckel's point came up during 1984 when a water main break shut down the VA medical center in Denver, forcing the agency to send patients to private sector sources of care for five days. Analysts who reviewed the costs experienced in this case discovered that taxpayers would have to shell out an additional $31 million if that single VA hospital were shut down for a full year.

The Grace Commission and others have asserted that the VA is providing care to veterans who have medical insurance or could otherwise afford to defray the cost of their treatment elsewhere. Further, they've stated that the VA will treat any veteran over age 65, regardless of ability to pay.

In an agency that's denying care to a quarter of a million veterans each year, such is not the case. If veterans are not seeking care for conditions related to military service, their status is reviewed according to provisions of law. If they can't afford care elsewhere, they won't get treatment from the VA.

If they cannot afford care from other sources, they may be treated by the VA on a space available basis. "If there's no space available for treatment," remarked Joeckel, "the VA does what little it can to refer these veterans to other publicly supported sources of care. But we don't know whether the bulk of these veterans are getting any treatment at all."

"This points to the truth about the VA's patient load. If these patients don't suffer service-connected disabilities, they're poor. The VA does have the statistics to back up what I'm saying."

If the VA stopped treating veterans who are non-service-connected and poor, what would happen? Some would not get any care, a scenario that's already being played out to some extent. The rest would fall back on the Medicare and Medicaid systems, receiving their treatment from private sources of care which are, in all probability as pointed out, more expensive than the VA, or from other publicly funded health facilities.

In other words, costs would not be cut. They'd simply be transferred elsewhere in the federal budget. Administrative costs that, right now, don't exist would be experienced. And the VA medical system, itself, would be jeopardized because it would not have a patient base sufficient to support nearly all of the services provided.

The American public would lose much more than medical care for veterans if the VA health care system collapsed. The VA is essential in the training of doctors, nurses and other health professionals. About a third of America's physicians received some of their training in VA facilities. Further, the plug would be pulled on VA medical research, which has benefited all Americans, not just veterans.

Heart Answers

WHAT IS A HEART ATTACK?

A heart attack is the death of a portion of heart muscle that may result in disability or death, depending on how much of the heart is damaged. It occurs when an obstruction in one of the coronary arteries prevents the blood from supplying oxygen to the heart muscle. Heart attack symptoms may include chest pain, nausea and shortness of breath. The risk of heart attack can be reduced by treating high blood pressure, avoiding cigarette smoking, observing a low cholesterol diet and maintaining normal body weight.

Hancock's state representative pleads for Amtrak appropriation

November 30, 1984
Governor Bill Allain
New State Capitol
Jackson, Mississippi 39205

Dear Governor Allain:

Although I received the State Executive Budget several days ago, I did not have time at that moment to review the entire budget.

However, since that time I noted that no provision was made for State contribution to the continuation of Amtrak Service between New Orleans and Mobile.

I have received from the Department of Energy and Transportation the Gulf Coast Limited Status Report and it was, indeed, encouraging and enlightening.

As I understand it the states of Alabama and Louisiana have pledged to contribute the required approximately $300,000 from each state.

In order to have this service continued it will be necessary for the State of Mississippi to contribute their proportionate share to the cost of the operation of this train.

If you can find time to examine the Gulf Coast Limited Status Report, I am sure that you will agree with me that this does provide a great opportunity for the citizens of the Gulf Coast to utilize this convenient service.

In examining the areas served by this particular train, one needs only to look at the route and the stops made and it can be readily seen that Mississippi stands to benefit most through the extension of this service.

It is my considered opinion that if this service is continued and proved to be satisfactory, that Amtrak will extend this service as a permanent part of its route, and as I understand it, Amtrak is contemplating extending the service from New Orleans to Jacksonville, Fla.

This, indeed, would be a boon to our citizenry as it would put the attractions of Florida within convenient range of our citizens.

Pensacola, Disney World, the Epicot Center and other attractions would be reached more conveniently by people from throughout Mississippi.

Conversely, the resort areas of the Gulf Coast could attract a great many people from Florida and Alabama through the convenience of this type of transportation.

With the extension of this service the people of New Orleans will already flock to the Gulf Coast will have an easier and more convenient means of reaching our resort areas.

I am sure that after you have considered the benefits to the state of Mississippi that you would recommend the inclusion of the funds necessary for the extension of the Gulf Coast Limited Service which will most certainly add to the economic development of this state.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Lt. Gov. Brad Dye and Speaker of the House C.B. Newman, and ask for their utmost consideration so that Mississippi might realize the benefits and advantages which would arise out of making the appropriation in the amount of $311,322.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely,
Walter J. Phillips
State Representative

Teenage girl expresses abortion position

December 3, 1984

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my opinion as an 18-year-old teenager who is against the practice of abortion here in Bay St. Louis.

I think that when a girl finds out she is pregnant, she is in a state of shock and feels that the only solution is an abortion.

She doesn't realize the magnitude of the decision she is about to make that will affect her the rest of her life.

She also doesn't realize that she is taking the life of an innocent child. I respect all adults who have taken a public stand against abortion.

To me, they have set an example of righteousness in our community and lifted up a standard of life that the town can look up to.

They have offered an alternative solution to any girl in a situation of an unwanted pregnancy.

We, as Americans, condemned Hitler for exterminating six million Jews in World War II and yet we overlook the fact that approximately 300 million babies are aborted each year.

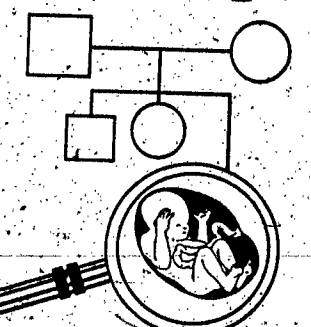

I ask you who believe in abortion, to think about how much value you place on your life and what steps you would take to preserve it. What if your mother had decided to abort you?

As this Christmas season approaches families all over the world are celebrating the birth of the Baby Jesus, while others are mourning because they have terminated the birth of a baby who could be celebrating Christmas.

They will never see their child celebrate Christmas. How many of us can celebrate Christmas with a peaceful heart?

Sincerely,
Elise M. McCollister

WYES-12 airing series on stress

WYES-TV/12 is now airing "Stress Brake," a series of five minute spots that takes a look at stress at work and at home.

The host of "Stress Brake" is Mark Gorkin, New Orleans' television "Stress Doc." Gorkin is a nationally recognized speaker, writer, and training consultant on occupational burnout and stress management.

"Stress Brake" airs Monday through Thursday at 8:55 p.m. and Friday at 10:25 p.m.

In the spots, Gorkin takes a "downhome" approach to stress: "What's the first through that comes to mind when I say 'stress'?" Being an investor or a contractor with the World's Fair? Wondering each season if spring monsoons will transform the fairgrounds into the "Jazz and Muddy Waters Festival?"

"Stress Brake" tries to break stereotypes about stress and burnout. The spots show how awareness of emotions and realistic—sometimes playful—attitudes are vital to mental and physical health.

One segment examines the different kinds of stress, including "good stress." Laughter, for example, is literally good medicine. Also highlighted is the importance of laughter, creativity and vigorous activity as catalysts for natural healing.

Another segment takes a close look at how distress develops and how burnout can be detected. Burnout signals are also outlined: "Does your car look like a pocket-book on wheels? Are you suffering from the Bjorn Borg Syndrome? Are you a prisoner of sainthood confined to a be-perfect script?"

Two segments focus on the burnout experience. Gorkin shares his first encounter with institutional burnout ("Do your eight and hit the gate," "Nine to five and stay alive") and identifies signs of organizational burnout.

Combat strategies are provided for those at the burnout battlefield with topics including: "Come out of the burnout closet," "confront a John Wayne style of stress management," "fireproof your life with variety," and "give and take a Mark Twain Megavitamin."

He also reveals why Olivia Newton-John is such a popular burnout consultant, and explains the difference between feeling sorry for yourself and feeling your sorrow.

Finally, "Stress Brake" playfully looks at Mardi Gras and creativity, two opportunities for liberating and uniting the contradictory and "forbidden" parts of our masculine and feminine inner selves and the logical and intuitive. The program will also examine the value of "thrustation" for more effective and creative problem-solving—along with a new motto for Mardi Gras.

Rep. Montgomery joins ranks of veterans award recipients

Congressman G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery (D-MS.), chairman of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs, has been selected to receive the prestigious Distinguished National Veterans Award.

The award, authorized by Congress in 1954, will be presented to the Congressman in conjunction with the National Veterans Day program in Birmingham on Nov. 11.

Montgomery is being recognized for his contributions to Americanism and for his outstanding Congressional leadership on behalf of our nation's veterans.

The Mississippi lawmaker has served as a member of the Veterans Affairs Committee for 16 years and has been chairman since 1981.

A former brigadier general in the Mississippi National Guard, he retired in 1980 with the rank of brigadier general in the U.S. Army Reserve following active duty and reserve military service of almost 40 years.

Former Mississippi Governor William Winter promoted him to the rank of major general in the National Guard in 1981.

Past recipients of the award include Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Louis Wilson, Charles Lindbergh, Adm. Hyman Rickover, former astronaut Neil Armstrong and Gen. William Westmoreland.

After being notified of the committee's selection, Montgomery said, "This award and any success I might enjoy must be shared with my colleagues and the American people."

who provide a tremendous amount of input and support, and with the people for whom I work as chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee...the nation's most select group of citizens—our veterans."

State senator's poems reflect quest

When Malcolm Mabry visits the Mississippi State University School of Veterinary Medicine, he is recognized as Taffey's owner rather than as the State Senator who represents Coahoma, DeSoto, Quitman and Tunica Counties.

Mabry took his cocker spaniel, Taffey, to the Vet School for treatment when she was very sick. Unfortunately, nothing could be done to cure her cancer.

Taffey's death and the subsequent acquisition of a puppy, cocker spaniel, Sugar, inspired Mabry to write two poems about Taffey.

Dr. James Miller, then Dean of the Vet School, was so impressed with the poems which showed the closeness of humans with animals that he had the poems framed to hang in his office.

The new Dean, Dr. Billy Ward, is having the poems included in a book commemorating the 10th anniversary of the Vet School, which was officially dedicated Oct. 27.

Mabry, who has written nearly 200 poems, is now revising selected verses in order to have a collection published. His book should be available in December. His poems range in length from six or eight lines to 12 pages, but they are all marked with deep melancholy.

"My best writing is through blurry tears. Much of a person's best work is written through tear-stained eyes. When one is in a deep emotional state, he seems to be better able to express his deep inner thoughts," Mabry explained.

"I find it almost impossible to write when I am in a happy mood, and so my poetry does not deal with light and trivial matters. My work is heavy. I dwell much on life and death, time, space, pain, loneliness, etc. Even the narrative poems have an element of mystery in them," he said.

Mabry has titled his five large notebooks filled with poetry "My Odyssey" because "odyssey" means an intellectual and spiritual wandering or quest. "That's what my poetry is to me," he explained.

"By reading what I have written, you will learn a number of things about me personally," Mabry writes in the Foreword to his collection of poetry.

"First, that I am basically a lonely person. Second, I am enthralled by the great mystery of the universe. Next, you will learn that I strongly believe that every person should be himself and accept himself. Trying to conform to other people's molds destroys individuality and stunts creativity. Also, in my writing you will discover that I feel a very deep kinship with those who have experienced a life of inner conflict, pain, and prejudice. There is a bond which unites us all—we are truly a fraternity that spans space and time."

Mabry, a teacher turned farmer, jots down ideas when they come to him no matter where he is—in church, in restaurants, during the middle of the night. His pockets are filled with scraps of paper and napkins covered with thoughts for new poems.

Sometimes the words come to Mabry instantly as if someone else were writing, and other poems require months of pondering.

"On some occasions, my poetry is almost flawless. It seems beyond my capacity to have created it. I have to wonder from where it came. Sometimes it just seems to flow from a source other than my brain. Perhaps from the great Reservoir of Universal Knowledge. When you are in an emotional state, you feel you are being inspired from a source outside yourself," Mabry said.

One poem which he has been mulling over for quite some time will be about "The Hooded Stranger"—a symbol for death—who comes to take him on a journey.

Realizing that there will be no return from this journey, he bargains with the stranger to give him 24 hours and then he will go.

The poem will go on to tell what things he sees for the last time, who he will tell good-bye, all the while the clock is ticking off the hours.

"It will be melancholy, but it is something we have all thought about," Mabry said.

In the Foreword, Mabry also writes, "In December of 1980, I began writing poetry. In the months that followed, I turned more and more to this medium as a source of relief for my depressed mind. Most of my writings during this period reflect a very somber—almost fatalistic—view of life. Nevertheless, I hope that somewhere within these pages you will discover a line or a verse that will speak to you. If so, then my efforts will have been worthwhile."

His efforts have already proven worthwhile to many—to those who have read his works in "Delta Scene Magazine," to those civic group members who have found tears in their eyes as they listened to him read his poetry, to those students at Delta Academy in Marks who sat spellbound while he got across his message of "Be Yourself" through is poetry, and to those at the MSU Vet School who will always remember Taffey.

MISSISSIPPI'S ABUSED ELEGANCE

Rural Mississippi is a Cinderella-like manifestation on these crisp, beautiful late autumn mornings that make one wonder to what heights of natural beauty and elegance this state and its inhabitants could soar if we really cared.

This writer lives so deeply in rural Mississippi that a "back forty" is my front yard and my rural mail carrier still is chagrined because he had to bring me a mail order tomato.

But the rewards are sheer elegance these great autumn mornings as you or I drive to work alongside frost covered meadows. This morning as I write this is one of those occasions.

A dazzling sun lit front covered cypress weeds growing in profusion along the road banks.

The view of Limekiln Creek coursing lazily beneath the Hwy. 49 bridge reflecting golden hickories, red dogwoods and a full range of color among the oaks, sweetgums, elms, ashes and sycamores was enough to turn me around to go back and make a color picture of the spectacle.

Photographed from the east lane bridge, the beautiful autumn scene and the bridge itself were mirrored in the golden, silt-laden waters of the creek as it headed toward an ultimate confluence with Bogue Chitto Creek, Big Black River and the Mississippi River south of Vicksburg.

The rolling road toward Jackson passed lakes reflecting the autumn colors along their shores. A large hawk with a whitish breast smoothed its feathers with its beak as I passed.

Rounding a bend in wooded hills the sun backlit red leaves of black-jack oak trees among green pines and Spanish moss draped oaks.

Another stop, another color photo. It was almost enough to make me forget the plastic bags of someone's garbage which had been dumped in a ditch.

I remembered the phone call I had received from a socially prominent Jackson lady whose home is often visited by tourists to our capital city. She wondered what could be done to save the bois d'arc and black locust trees on the black topped road near her home from being swallowed up by honeysuckle. Maintenance, lately, it seemed, had become slack in her area.

We Mississippians can be pretty sloppy about our outdoor housekeeping, it seems.

I recall my repugnance on many occasions upon seeing herbicides being sprayed along the rights-of-way turning avenues of wild flowers into a chemical battle zone.

I remembered too similar practices in other parts of this fair state that have eradicated colonies of yellow fringed orchids, cardinal flowers and purple gayfeathers.

Then there's the memory of a river bottom right-of-way in central Mississippi where spring blooming phlox and evening primroses once were one of nature's rarest treats in this state—but they are almost all gone today.

Then, there is a dismaying remembrance of county-operated bushes that tilt vertically to shatter, rather than cut, sapling and tree limbs along the rights-of-way of many of our rural roads in Mississippi practical maintenance, as opposed to husbandry of and with our natural resources.

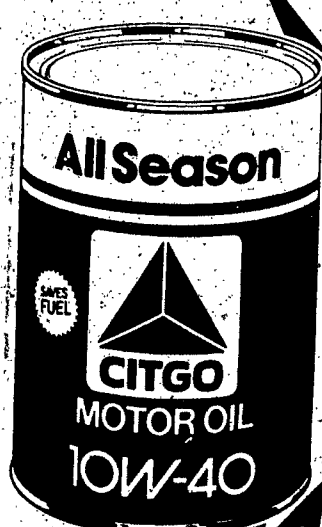

It is sad to be poor.

Still this sumptuously endowed state, like the neglected and abused Cinderella of literary fame, can flaunt a thoroughly captivating beauty when the elements and seasons give it only slight provocation.

What if we really cared!

4-H POULTRY CHAIN

The Poultry industry has not quite yet caught on in Hancock County, but if you attended the County Fair and Livestock Show, you would have noticed several 4-H'ers trying their hand at growing chickens.

The 4-H Poultry Chain is sponsored by Coast Electric and Hancock County Fair and Livestock Association. This year, 25 chicks were donated to eight selected 4-H families. 4-H'ers selected were Rhett and Arlett Ladner, Sheri Sherwin, Drew and Casses Smith, Marisha and Berry Nicaise, William and Melissa Moran, Larry and Leonard Koenenn, and Robert, Tammy, Brenda and Cita Kost.

These 4-H'ers raised and managed their own strains of sex-linked chickens. This type of bird was selected for their egg production qualities. Egg producing chickens should be laying at approximately four months. Sex-linked chickens have smaller bodies than broiler chicks and do not eat as much feed. 4-H helps members to learn through experience by providing learn-by-doing activities. Besides learning responsibility, the 4-H Poultry Chain helped 4-H'ers to learn how to feed and water chickens, how to handle and recognize quality eggs and how to recognize the desirable traits for quality egg producing chickens.

A 4-H Poultry Chain auction was held during the county fair. Each 4-H member selected eight of his/her best chickens to be auctioned. The proceeds from this auction went back into the chain to buy more chicks for other 4-H members.

Public attendance as high as the auction but public support for our 4-H youth was low. There were few bids on the chickens and these proceeds did not cover the amount to purchase more chickens for the 4-H Poultry Chain next year.

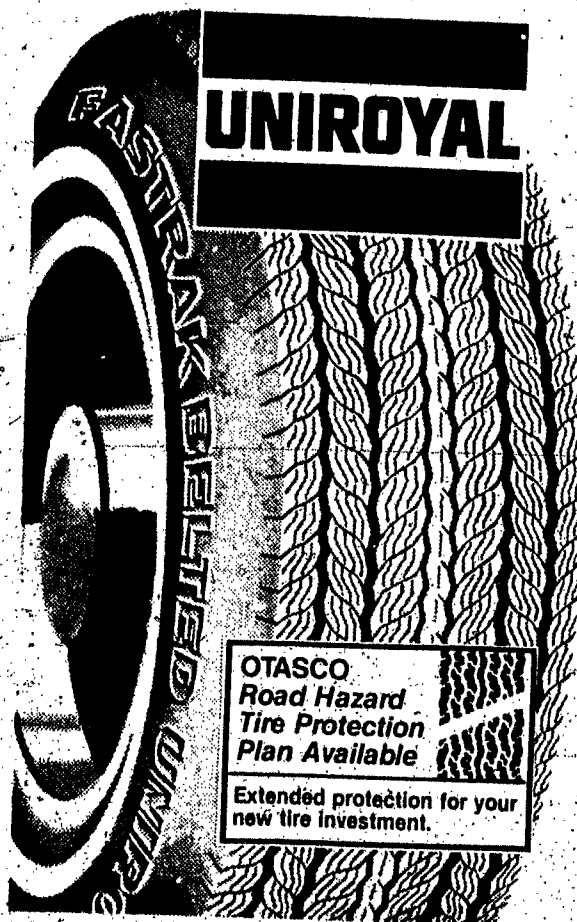

4-H helps its members to grow mentally, physically, spiritually and socially. The youth of this county are the future, so let's support our youth by supporting 4-H.

MISSISSIPPI'S
ABUSED ELEGANCE

Rural Mississippi is a Cinderella-like manifestation on these crisp, beautiful late autumn mornings that make one wonder to what heights of natural beauty and elegance this state and its inhabitants could soar if we really cared.

This writer lives so deeply in rural Mississippi that a "back forty" is my front yard and my rural mail carrier still is chagrined because he had to bring me a mail order tomato.

But the rewards are sheer elegance these great autumn mornings as you or I drive to work alongside frost covered meadows. This morning as I write this is one of those occasions.

A dazzling sun lit front covered cypress weeds growing in profusion along the road banks.

The view of Limekiln Creek coursing lazily beneath the Hwy. 39 bridge reflecting golden hickories, red dogwoods and a full range of color among the oaks, sweetgums, elms, ashes and sycamores was enough to turn me around to go back and make a color picture of the spectacle.

Photographed from the east lane bridge, the beautiful autumn scene and the bridge itself were mirrored in the golden, silt-laden waters of the creek as it headed toward an ultimate confluence with Bogue Chitto Creek, Big Black River and the Mississippi River south of Vicksburg.

The rolling road toward Jackson passed lakes reflecting the autumn colors along their shores. A large hawk with a whitish breast smoothed its feathers with its beak as I passed.

Rounding a bend in wooded hills the sun backlit red leaves of black-jack oak trees among green pines and Spanish moss draped oaks.

Another stop, another color photo. It was almost enough to make me forget the plastic bags of someone's garbage which had been dumped in a ditch.

I remembered the phone call I had received from a socially prominent Jackson lady whose home is often visited by tourists to our capital city.

She wondered what could be done to save the bois d'arc and black locust trees on the black topped road near her home from being swallowed up by honeysuckle. Maintenance lately, it seemed, had become slack in her area.

We Mississippians can be pretty sloppy about our outdoor housekeeping, it seems.

I recall my repugnance on many occasions upon seeing herbicides being sprayed along the rights-of-way turning avenues of wild flowers into a chemical battle zone.

I remembered too similar practices in other parts of this fair state that have eradicated colonies of yellow fringed orchids, cardinal flowers and purple gayfeathers.

Then there's the memory of a river bottom right-of-way in central Mississippi where spring blooming phlox and evening primroses once were one of nature's rarest treats in this state—but they are almost all gone today.

Then, there is a dismaying remembrance of county-operated bushes that tilt vertically to shatter rather than cut, sapling and tree limbs along the rights-of-way of many of our rural roads in Mississippi practical maintenance, as opposed to husbandry of and with our natural resources.

It is sad to be poor.

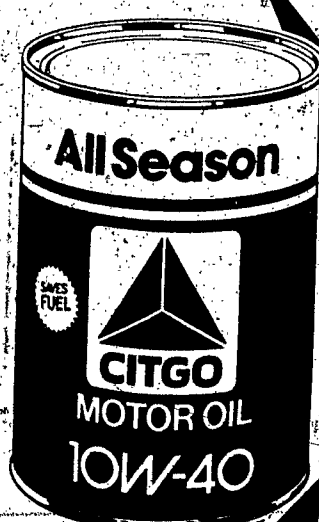

Still this, sumptuously endowed state, like the neglected and abused Cinderella of literary fame, can flaunt a thoroughly captivating beauty when the elements and seasons give it only slight provocation.

What if we really cared!

4-H POULTRY CHAIN

The Poultry industry has not quite yet caught on in Hancock County, but if you attended the County Fair and Livestock Show, you would have noticed several 4-H'ers trying their hand at growing chickens.

The 4-H Poultry Chain is sponsored by Coast Electric and Hancock County Fair and Livestock Association. This year 25 chicks were donated to eight selected 4-H families. 4-H'ers selected were Rhett and Arlett Ladner, Sheri Sherwin, Drew and Casses Smith, Marisha and Berry Necaise, William and Melissa Moran, Larry and Leonard Koenen, and Robert, Tammy, Brenda and Cita Kost.

These 4-H'ers raised and managed their own strains of sex-linked chickens. This type of bird was selected for their egg production qualities. Egg producing chickens should be laying at approximately four months. Sex-linked chickens have smaller bodies than broiler chicks and do not eat as much feed.

4-H helps members to learn through experience by providing learn-by-doing activities. Besides learning responsibility, the 4-H Poultry Chain helped 4-H'ers to learn how to feed and water chickens, how to handle and recognize quality eggs and how to recognize the desirable traits for quality egg producing chickens.

A 4-H Poultry Chain auction was held during the county fair. Each 4-H member selected eight of his/her best chickens to be auctioned. The proceeds from this auction went back into the chain to buy more chicks for other 4-H members.

Public attendance as high as the auction but public support for our 4-H youth was low. There were few bids on the chickens and these proceeds did not cover the amount to purchase more chickens for the 4-H Poultry Chain next year.

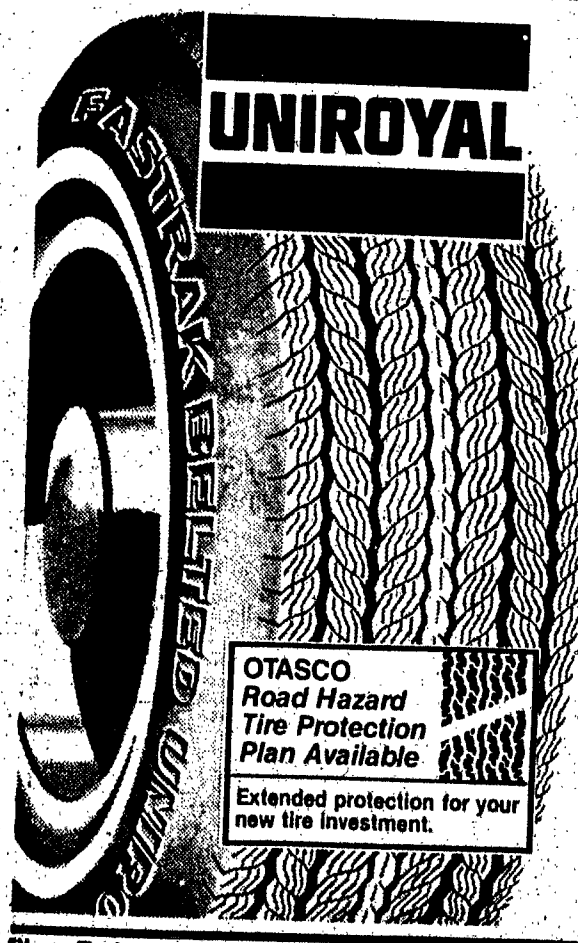

4-H helps its members to grow mentally, physically, spiritually and socially. The youth of this county are the future, so let's support our youth by supporting 4-H.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

TIMESHARING

Q: On a recent visit to the Coast, I noticed a number of advertisements trying to sell time-share condominiums. How does such venture work and what do I own? D.R., Morton

A: Dear D.R.: A legal form of ownership which has become popular in recent years is the time-share condominium. Time sharing has become very common in selling off ownership units in recreational properties.

It involves a separation of individual units from common areas just like the conventional condominium. However, the time share adds an additional fragmentation. It allows an individual to own a certain specified time interval.

The "attractiveness" of the time-share unit depends on the location of the property, the level of amenities offered and the season.

Consider a family who wishes to take a vacation in the same location and at the same time each year. This family may find a time-share unit a very useful idea.

A promoter usually divides the right to use a time-share unit into 52 weekly time intervals. A purchaser may buy as many time intervals as desired.

Normally, the intervals are priced according to the season. For example, a time-share condominium in a ski resort may cost more for a week during the winter than during the summer.

The purchaser will pay a fixed price for the time-share unit, which can be financed by the developer for another lender.

In addition, there is usually an annual maintenance fee that is assessed for each time interval purchased. To make the time interval more attractive, some promoters have joined a vacation pooling arrangement with developers of other time-share projects.

A purchaser in one project can decide to use a time interval in another project by paying a registration fee and making his or her time interval available for the use of someone else.

The Successful Real Estate Negotiator

Q: I have just recently entered the real estate brokerage profession and need any suggestions you may have on how I can become a successful real estate broker. B.B., Oxford

A: Dear B.B.: A prerequisite to becoming a successful real estate professional is the ability to negotiate effectively. In a recent issue of Commercial Investment Journal the question of what makes a good negotiator was put to a number of successful real estate practitioners. The consensus was that negotiation is a skill that must be learned and by learning to understand human behavior, you as a real estate broker can learn to motivate and persuade.

A few suggestions mentioned in the report are as follows:

Have the proper attitude. Be sensitive to the ethics involved, be self-motivated, have self trust, be people oriented, be creative, be adaptable and keep thorough records.

Stay prepared. Know the project you are dealing with and know the client with whom you are dealing so that you can anticipate potential conflict areas. This will also lay the groundwork for an open and honest relationship.

Have effective communication skills. Establish credibility by first making a good impression. Establish empathy by putting yourself in your client's shoes. Clarify complex ideas by making them appear clear and simple to the people you are dealing with.

Be able to solve problems by playing out all the scenarios to determine all possible outcomes and then select the route with the most positive results. Finally, be able to close a deal. If all of the previous suggestions have been successfully followed, closing will follow naturally.

For answers to questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P.O. Box 295, University, Ms. 39677.

Southern Company testing energy source

Researchers at The Southern Company's engineering subsidiary have completed installation of a fuel cell that is expected to be the first in the nation powered by coalbed methane gas. The fuel cell—which produces electricity through an electrochemical process that is virtually pollution free—will be capable of supplying nearly 50 percent of the energy requirements for a student recreation center located on the University of Alabama campus at Tuscaloosa.

The project is part of a $58-million, nationwide program sponsored by the Department of Energy and the Gas Research Institute to evaluate the effectiveness of fuel cell technology.

"Fuel cells were first developed for use in America's space program," said Southern Company President Edward L. Addison. "They've performed well on space missions and many believe that fuel cells could become a key energy source for the future. Our research will help demonstrate whether this promising technology can be adapted for everyday applications," he added.

The Atlanta-based Southern Company is the parent firm of four electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power. The fuel cell project is being managed by Southern Company Services, Inc.—The Southern Company's engineering and special services subsidiary and prime contractor for the project.

The 40-kilowatt fuel cell installed at the University of Alabama differs from others being tested across the country because one of its prime sources of fuel will be methane gas from underground coal seams. Coalbed gas traditionally has been viewed as a waste product of mining. At the University of Alabama, the coalbed gas will be extracted from seams some 2,000 feet beneath the campus.

Discussing the fuel cell technology, S. R. Hart, Jr., vice president of Southern Company Services, explained that "...the chemical process at work is very efficient because it allows fuel to be converted directly into electricity. In addition, the process is extremely clean, with carbon dioxide, water, and heat the only by-products of the cell's operation."

"The experiment we're conducting at the University of Alabama will help determine how well these advantages hold up under actual operating conditions," Hart continued. "For example, we'll see how climate influences reliability and how maintenance requirements affect overall costs."

This prototype fuel cell—which is approximately the size of an industrial air conditioner—will be tested for one year. Southern Company Services, the University of Alabama School of Mines and Energy Development, and Kaneb Services, Inc.—a diversified energy company based in Houston—will operate and maintain the equipment, collect data, and perform a market assessment of the technology. The fuel cell was manufactured by United Technologies Corp.

Michoud Division wins security award

The Michoud Division of Martin has received the James S. Cogswell award from the Department of Defense for outstanding industrial security achievement in 1984.

Joan Turner, director of Industrial Security for the Southeastern Region of the Defense Investigative Service, presented the award in New Orleans.

Turner cited the Michoud Division for its "high level of security consciousness and top-ranking education program."

"Your sustained outstanding achievement in 1984 contributed significantly to the security interests of the nation," she said in presenting the award to Richard M. Davis, vice president and general manager of the Michoud Division.

The Michoud Division and 29 other firms were selected from more than 13,000 industrial firms with DoD facility security clearances to perform classified contracts.

Award criteria include the degree of security consciousness and cooperation by management, effectiveness of employee security education and motivation programs, security practices and procedures, and ability to sustain progressive security systems.

The award, named for the first chief of the Office of Industrial Security, cited the Michoud Division and security manager Raymond J. Lacombe.

The ageless story of Christmas

There is the hustle and bustle during the Christmas season of decorating the tree, wrapping gifts, sending cards, shopping, helping the Salvation Army with the needy, and loving others; but the true meaning of the Yuletide season becomes alive in the ageless Bible story of the birth of Christ and in the singing of Christmas carols.

In the song, "Silent Night, Holy Night" we hear: "Round yon Virgin Mother and child! which tells of the virgin birth.

Isaiah (7:14) prophesied thousands of years before the Lord was born, "Therefore the Lord Himself shall give you a sign; behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call His Name Immanuel," and this was fulfilled in Matt. 2:23 with the interpretation of Immanuel being, "God with us."

The Prophet Micah (5:2) tells where Jesus will be born. "But thou Bethlehem, Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto Me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting."

Matt. 2:1 says that Jesus was born in Bethlehem and so we have the carol, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

"Away in a Manger, no crib for a bed" tells that Jesus Christ was born in poverty in an animal stable. This is verified in II Cor. 8:9: "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich" in spiritual blessings on earth and eternal life in heaven.

We sing, "Joy to the world, the Lord is come," which was written by Isaac Watts.

As we sinners prepare room and receive the Lord unto our hearts as Saviour we have great joy in salvation and later we can enter into the joy of the Lord as we serve Him by keeping His many commandments in the New Testament.

The song continues with these words: "Let earth receive her King," but the Lord did not come the first time as King but as Saviour; however, at the end of the ages He will come down to earth the second time and set up His kingdom and reign as King on the throne of David in Jerusalem. Nevertheless, we can let Him reign over our lives as Lord and King.

"While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks" is a carol about Luke 2:8-14 where an angel brought good tidings of joy, "For unto you is born this day in the City of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And the angel praised God saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men!'"

The peace spoken of is not from wars but is a peace that is within the heart of sinful mankind as he acknowledges His need for a Saviour and calls out to be saved.

To trouble wicked King Herod there had to be more than three wise men in the song, "We Three Kings." They worshipped Jesus and gave Him gifts of gold for His Kingship, frankincense for the fragrance of His life and fellowship, and myrrh for His burial.

We can receive a gift of salvation at Christmas time if we but believe that Jesus is the Son of God: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest any man should boast." (Eph. 2:8, 9) As His children, we can give Him gifts of love, praise, thanks and a dedicated life.

Williams assumes new duties at Martin

Frank L. Williams has been named director of program development and advanced programs for the Michoud Division of Martin Marietta Aerospace in New Orleans, La. Williams replaced Douglas D. Hart in the program development function while retaining his current responsibility for advanced programs.

FRANK WILLIAMS

Hart has been transferred to the company's Denver operation as director of business development for the space systems division.

Williams' new assignment emphasizes the identification and acquisition of new business for Martin Marietta. The Michoud Division manufactures the giant space shuttle external propellant tanks for the NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center. The company also is studying advanced derivations of the Space Shuttle and designs for a space station.

Williams has been director of advanced programs at Martin Marietta's Michoud Division for six years. He was previously director of the special programs division at NASA headquarters where he managed four Earth Applications Satellite programs, several space processing rocket missions and numerous ground based activities in the area of earth and ocean applications. He also spent eight years as an officer in the U.S. Air Force doing engineering flight tests, two years with the Army Ballistic Missile Agency doing advanced system design, and 10 years with the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center where he served as assistant to Dr. Werner Von Braun and director of the advanced system office.

Williams holds a bachelor's degree in Aeronautical Engineering from Auburn University and a master's degree in Aeronautical Engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He and his wife reside in Slidell.

Plastic surgery corrects double chin

A refinement of earlier surgical techniques now allows plastic surgeons to eliminate "fatty necks," or double chins, in young people, according to Robert Singer, M.D., F.A.C.S., of La Jolla, Calif.

The appearance of excess fatty tissue and skin, which obliterates the natural chin line, is usually a manifestation of the aging process, but can be inherited. It can add years to a person's appearance.

Until recently, this surgery was generally performed in conjunction with a face lift, thereby limiting it mostly to older patients. Post-surgical problems encountered included extensive scars or a failure of the skin to drape naturally.

By using a smaller incision (placed on the underside of the chin) and removing not only the outside layer of fat, but deeper-set fat pads, and adjusting the platysma (a thin muscle of the neck just below the skin), Dr. Singer has achieved excellent results in a series of 20 younger patients.

Because the condition is sometimes accompanied by a receding chin, he has also been able to place chin implants through the same incision when required, thus adding to aesthetic outcome.

Surgery is performed under local anesthesia and intravenous sedation. Patients have ranged in age from 17 to 42 years.

Dr. Singer cautions that good results can be obtained only if the patient has good skin tone, or elasticity, since no skin is removed. The slack, or excess skin, is taken up by the new configuration. The procedure is not a treatment or cure for general obesity.

In the three-year period since Dr. Singer initiated his technique, he has found no recurrence of the "fatty neck" in his patients. None has experienced problems with excess skin, and no one has required further neck surgery. Mild bruising is normally present for 10 to 14 days following surgery.

"The technique is not a panacea for everyone with a heavy neck or fat under the chin," he concludes, "and surgical candidates must understand that further corrective surgery or a subsequent facelift may be indicated if the skin has poor elasticity. But for younger people with good skin tone, there can be substantial aesthetic improvement."

The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons sponsors a free referral service to help prospective patients locate nearby active members who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgeons. The 24-hour telephone referral number is (in Chicago) 312-856-1834.

Interested people can obtain a list of plastic surgeons in their area by writing to The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons, Suite 1900, 233 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons was founded in 1931 to promote optimal quality care for plastic surgery patients; to meet the professional needs of plastic surgeons through educational programs; to promote the highest professional standards in the specialty; and to support the socio-economic and professional activities of its members.

To become an active member in the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons, a plastic surgeon must be certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. To become qualified for board certification, a plastic surgeon must have completed medical school, an approved general surgery program of three or more years, and an approved two-year plastic surgery residency program. Certification is obtained only after a candidate passes comprehensive and rigorous examinations—both written and oral—administered by the American Board of Plastic Surgery.

CORRECTIVE SURGERY—New plastic surgery techniques such as the one diagramed can correct double chins in younger people.

Commission to meet with supervisors

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission has called a joint meeting with the county board of supervisors for Thursday night. Expected to be included on the agenda for that meeting is a proposal to locate an aircraft modification plant at Stennis International Airport.

Epilepsy support group organizing

A support group for persons who have the convulsive disorder of epilepsy is being formed on the Gulf Coast.

The purpose of this group is to meet on a regular basis each month and address common problems and solutions associated with epilepsy.

There is no charge for group participation as the Epilepsy Foundation of Mississippi is supported by United Way funds throughout the Gulf Coast area.

Interested persons are asked to contact the Foundation at 2816-B Southland St., Jackson, Ms. 39216 (601-362-2761) or Mrs. Warren Galle, 3003 Pineland Ave., Gulfport, Ms. 39501.

Attorney General's CONSUMER PROTECTION HOT LINE

1-800-223-5615

The aircraft firm is interested in opening an aircraft modification facility at Stennis by July 1985 and reportedly asked the commission to recommend that the county issue $3,800,000 in industrial revenue bonds to finance construction.

Reynolds said if the facility is built, it could provide the county with about 250 new jobs.

He said the aircraft firm has been negotiating with the commission for about two years on the possibility of locating at Stennis, but delays in the construction of sewage and water facilities needed for industry there have kept both sides from making a commitment to the project.

However, current contract negotiations between Smith and Smith and the U.S. government require that the firm have modification facilities in operation by July 1 in order to meet delivery schedules, Raymond said.

In other airport-related business, the commission voted to hire Delta Testing Corporation to conduct further testing on a hangar apron.

The apron, according to Michael Smith, who served as project engineer, is apparently constructed of material that is not dense enough to stand up to proposed usage.

Vehicles driven across the apron have been leaving marks in its surface, Smith reported.

Delta personnel will conduct tests on the material and compile a report on the density and any other additional problems that may be found, Smith reported.

Experts from Delta may also be called upon to testify when a contractor's lawsuit involving the apron is tried in February.

The suit was filed against the commission by Bond Paving, the apron contractor, after the commission and the county board of supervisors approved withholding about $89,000 from the final payment on the contract.

The $89,000 represents damages incurred because Bond was more than a year late in finishing the project.

ject.

The suit alleges that Advanced Development Inc., the commission's engineering firm, contributed to the delays through improper testing.

In other business, the commission approved hiring Southland Enterprises of Gulfport as contractor on a drainage project at the airport, approved the use of airport property for maneuvers by the Air National Guard; and appointed a soil conservation liaison officer.

The commission also rescinded and corrected a resolution setting up a short-term loan account to pay interest on a federally-funded project until the federal funds are available.

What are your earliest memories of Christmas, Eve? And your family's traditional observance of that day and evening? A montage of Christmas tree trimming, laughter, bowls of creamy, buttery oyster stew and those tiny oyster crackers, slipped before a blazing fire (even if the weather were mild) and then the trip to Midnight Mass, and home again for the Reveillon, the feast in the very early hours of Christmas Day—these are among my early memories.

We all have our own traditions; some have their Christmas dinner on Christmas Eve, others on Christmas Day. But, whichever you choose, I think you'll find my mother's recipe for Oyster Stew quite delicious. So, here's:

MOTHER'S BUTTERY
OYSTER STEW
1 quart oysters, drained (Reserve the liquor from the oysters)
4 Tbsp. minced green onions
1 Tbsp. minced parsley
1 quart half and half or milk
1 cup clam juice
½ stick butter

The secret of this simple but oh-so-good family recipe is the added clam juice, a secret my mother learned from her Eastern-shore cousins, and a trick, incidentally, used at the oyster bar for years and years in New York's Grand Central Station.

If you want a rich, rich oyster stew, use half cream and half milk; for the lighter version, use milk alone.

First, drain the oysters and reserve the oyster liquor. Combine the liquor with the chopped green onion and parsley, and bring to low boil.

In another saucepan, heat the cream or milk to the boiling point, add the oyster liquor mixture and the cup of clam juice, along with the butter.

Add the oysters and heat almost to boiling again, stirring, until the edges of the oysters curl.

Season with pepper and salt to your taste, and serve at once with generous pats of butter atop each serving.

Caldwell retires after 31 years

BY DENA BISNETTE
After more than 31 years with the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District, Assistant Superintendent Donald Caldwell will retire on Dec. 21.

Caldwell, a native of Hickory, started teaching in 1950 in Jones County. He came to Bay St. Louis in July 1953 as a math teacher and basketball coach at the district's only secondary facility, which was known as Central School and occupied the building which is now Bay Junior High.

After teaching for five years, he became Bay High School principal and was serving in that post when the school moved to its present building in 1967.

Caldwell served as principal for 12 years and was named assistant superintendent in 1973 when Superintendent S.J. Ingram retired and Ingram's assistant J.D. McCulloch moved into the superintendent's job.

"I originally came to the Coast because I wanted to try to establish myself in a larger school than the one I started with; the old Raney School in Jones County. I was the one and only football coach that school ever had," Caldwell said.

"I'd rather teach than do anything but even while I was teaching I had an inside feeling I'd become an administrator because I wanted to influence things, to make changes," he said.

"As an administrator I feel I have influenced improvements in education for many years but it has been in indirect ways. The teacher is the one who really influences the students."

Possibly due to his influence, many of Caldwell's former students have become teachers and are teaching in the Bay St. Louis district.

Changes in the district itself have been extensive in the past 31 years, Caldwell said. When he arrived in 1953, the district included only Central School; Taylor School, a one-room facility for first and second graders; and Webb School, a two-classroom facility. The S.J. Ingram building across from Bay Junior High was under construction.

Since becoming assistant superintendent, Caldwell's duties have included being in charge of transportation, federal programs and curriculum.

The biggest changes have taken place in transportation, where the district has gone from picking up 400 students who lived too far away to walk to school to picking up 1,400 students, some of whom live no more than a mile from the school, Caldwell said.

Two of the most promising changes he has seen, however, are the inclusion of computers in the federally funded Chapter 1 program for elementary school students and the Accountability and Instructional Management (AIM) Program.

"We've expanded the computer-assisted instruction program into the sixth grade, but I believe we'll see it on all levels one day," he commented.

Caldwell served as the district coordinator for the recently completed AIM program and said it will have a great influence on education in the district if it is properly managed.

CRICK IN NECK

A spasmodic condition of the muscles in the neck and over the shoulder area occur when the neck bones have become subluxated, irritating the spinal nerves which control muscle function. Aside from being painful, it is often attended with serious complications if not cared for promptly. We find that people who acquire them will usually experience additional neck problems, each more severe than the previous: Falls, drafts, accidents, posture all contribute to this painful condition when the patient has an underlying structural problem. Surgery, traction, clipping of the nerves are last resort measures. The doctor of Chiropractic should be considered first for this condition as the spine and structural muscular balance are his special domain. Prompt attention will usually render the condition painless and avoid permanent damage.

Rocks cheer Saints to big win over Steelers, 27-24

EIGHTH YEAR—The St. Stanislaus varsity cheerleaders show their support for the New Orleans Saints during the Saints' 27-24 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers. This marked the eighth consecutive year that the SSC cheerleaders have been invited to appear in the Louisiana Superdome to cheer on the field for the Saints.

Tigers take three against Long Beach

Bay St. Louis High School's triple basketball victory against Long Beach Tuesday night was highlighted by a 72-70 overtime win for the boys' varsity team.

"It was a great, great spectators' game," said boys' basketball coach Barney Necaise. "It was a well-balanced game and a good team effort."

"This group is young, with two sophomores, two juniors and one senior, and they had never played together before this season. With all that youth and inexperience, it has just taken them a while to get started."

"Considering that, I think they played tremendous basketball Tuesday," he said.

Dexter Bell, Andre Daniels and Jeffery Smith led scoring against Long Beach with 20 points for Bell, 19 for Daniels and 12 for Smith.

Additional points were credited to Greg Necaise, who scored nine, and Martin Elzey, who scored eight.

The victory gives the Tiger varsity a 5-3 season record.

In the girls' game, Coach Willie Bradley's Tigerettes defeated Long Beach 64-52. Michelle Dorsey led the scoring with 27 points, followed by Joni Farve with 20.

The game improved the Tigerette's season record to 7-2.

"This victory should give our girls some momentum going into the toughest part of their schedule, which includes Stone and Picayune next week," Necaise commented.

In addition, the junior varsity defeated Long Beach 48-39. Leading scorers were Gene Boswell with 17 points and Matt Fairconnetue with 10. The team now has two wins and one loss for the season.

The next game will be Friday when the Tigers face Stone County at home. Remaining games before the Christmas break include St. Stanislaus at St. Stanislaus Monday night and Picayune at Picayune next Thursday.

SSC VARSITY—The 1984-1985 St. Stanislaus High School Varsity Basketball Team will bring a 4-4 record into the Ecole Classique Tournament in New Orleans Friday night. The Rocks are slated to meet Bay High Monday in SSC's Brother Peter Gym. Tip-off is at 7:30 p.m. following a Junior-Varsity contest at 6:30 p.m.

Nine Hawks named in All-District picks

Nine Hancock North Central Hawks were honored at a recent St. Martin High banquet in Jackson County where the All-District Class 4-A football team for 1984 was named.

District champion d'Iberville placed seven players on the offensive team and five on the defensive unit which were selected by the district coaches.

Five linemen, two receivers, four backs and a place kicker were selected to the offensive unit. While five linemen, three linebackers, three backs and a punter were named to the defensive team.

Offensive linemen selected included ed Harlon Monk, Robert Raynor and Paul Shoemaker of d'Iberville, Edward Tapp of St. Martin and Billy Davis of Hancock North Central.

Dean Cooper and Johnny Enoch, both of d'Iberville, landed first-team berths as receivers, and David Harrison of d'Iberville was chosen as the place kicker.

Offensive backs chosen were Stanley Jordan and Frank Ladner of Hancock North Central, Wayne Rudolph of St. Martin and Jimmy Chapman of d'Iberville.

The defensive unit consisted of the following: Down linemen David Mize and Richard Bullard of d'Iberville, Brian Necaise and Louis Burton of Hancock, and Louis Anglada of St. Martin; linebackers David Harrison and Billy Rusher of d'Iberville and Drew Malley of Hancock; backs Mike Harris of St. Martin, Milton Lewis of Hancock and Derek Bass of d'Iberville; and punter Mark Fayard of St. Martin.

Honorable mention went to Owen Rucker, Tommy Dimitry and David Joseph of St. Martin; Carey Necaise, Charles Burton, and Tony Guidry of Hancock; and Bobby Denton, Jack Ewing and David Parker of d'Iberville.

St. Stanislaus and George County representatives also attended the Wednesday meeting.

Pirates up record to 6-1

The Pass Christian Pirates rebounded from their only loss of the season Monday to defeat Pearl River Central for the second time in four days, 64-41.

"I thought we played fairly well under the circumstances," Pirate Coach Ken Hudson said. "The loss Saturday night to Long Beach took a lot out of us and the team was still a little tired."

"But they did what they had to do to win and that is what good ball clubs do," he added.

John Dedeaux led the Pirates with 24 points, 16 was scored in the second quarter. Joe Brown collected 14 points and Irvin Hall chipped in with 10 rebounds.

Johnson Carter scored 10 points for Pearl River Central.

With this win Pass Christian ran their record to 6-1 and will be on the road this weekend as they take on Forest County High School.

Last week the Pirates were defeated in the finals of the Pass

Christian Invitational Tournament by Long Beach High School, 69-60.

This was the Pirates first loss. "We could never recover from the pace set by the Bearcats in the first half," Hudson said.

"They hit 19 of 21 shots from the floor and the ball just wouldn't fall for us in the first half and nearly everything they put up went in," he said.

"When your opponent shoots almost 90 percent and you shoot only 33 percent, there is no way you can win the game," Hudson said.

Leading the scoring was Long Beach player Earl Watkins with 22 points. Teammate Bobby Reed added 15 and David A'Quilla had 11 points.

Joel Hatcher paced the Pirates with 20 points. Dedeaux added 16 and Hall scored 12 points.

In the semi-finals Pass Christian defeated Pearl River Central 71-56. PRC had advanced to the finals by defeating Hancock North Central, 52-51 in Thursday's quarter-finals.

The Pirates had a 34-16 advantage in first half and mainly reserve players saw action in the second half, Hudson said.

Joel Hatcher led all scorers with 20 points. Joe Brown had 17 and Dedeaux had 11 points. Gerald Tillman for PRC scored 11.

Wildcats to compete in Yuletide Classic

Pearl River College pushed its basketball record to 6-5 last week by winning three of four games.

The 'Cats opened the week with a loss to East Central and then rebounded with three straight wins in its own Christmas Classic on the Poplarville campus.

Pearl River defeated William Carey JV 71-62, John A. Logan (IL) 78-64 and the Athletics in Action 114-57.

Thursday, Steve Gouner led the Wildcats with 17 points. He was followed by Donald Dunston with 15 and Carl Firven with 14.

For Carey, Clyde Woullard scored 16 and Robert Bridges and Greg Hatten each put in 13.

In other games, Gulf Coast defeated Lakeland, OH 80-75 and John A. Logan (IL) downed Pensacola Junior College 74-68.

Firven poured in 36 points and Donald Dunston added 23 Friday night as the Wildcats crushed John Logan.

Keith Lott led the 'Cats on Saturday night with 22 points. Carl Firven added 18 for the Wildcats while Ben Matlock hit for 15. Scott Vaughn and Steve Gouner each had 12.

For Athletics in Action, Darryl Darden hit for 19 points while Rocky Gerald and Otis Bickham hit for 15 and 11, respectively.

In the other game, Gulf Coast dropped a high-scoring 107-103 loss at the hands of John A. Logan Junior College of Illinois.

Lloyd Jones had 17 points for the Bulldogs, while Tony Johnson and Steve Bankston hit for 16 and 14, respectively.

Pearl River will play in the Delgado, New Orleans, Yuletide Classic, Dec. 27-29.

South wins JUCO classic

Pearl River's Ricky Myers scored two touchdowns, including one on a 56-yard run, as the South shut out the North 34-0 in the 18th annual Mississippi Junior College All-Star Football Classic Saturday in Tupelo.

The victory improved the South's record to 7-5-1 in the matchup.

Myers, named offensive player of the game, scored his first TD in the third quarter on a 43-yard pass to make it 27-0, the South. His 56-yard run was the final score of the game.

The South jumped to a 14-0 lead at the end of the first quarter, but put the game away in the second quarter when linebacker Allen Montgomery of Gulf Coast blocked a North punt and defensive tackle Kelvin Reese of Copiah-Lincoln ran the ball back for a touchdown to make it 20-0.

The North squad's Michael Roach of Northeast was named defensive player of the game.

Richard Hughes, John Henry and Tommy Lindsey were starters for the South team.

State park 1985 cabin reservations to open Jan. 1

Reservations for vacation cabins at Mississippi state parks for 1985 will be accepted beginning Jan. 2 at 8 a.m.

Reservations may be made by contacting the individual park office during regular business hours, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cabin reservations are not required but are strongly recommended.

Aubrey Rozzell, director of the Bureau of Recreation and Parks, has listed the rules that apply to cabin reservations:

1. One person may not make reservations for more than five cabins for one date, unless special approval is given by the district manager to accommodate family reunions, etc.
2. Reservations can be made for only one set of dates at a time.
3. First priority will be given to in-person requests, followed by telephone requests, and letters postmarked after Jan. 1.

Minimum stay for the heavy use season—Memorial Day weekend through Labor Day weekend—is three nights. There is a two-night minimum during other times of the year. Maximum stay during the heavy use season is 14 days.

State parks with vacation cabins are Clarkco, Quitman; George Payne Cossar, Oakland; Holmes County, Durant; Hugh White, Grenada; J.P. Coleman, Iuka; John W. Gulf Coast Research Laboratory has wide range of projects

The Gulf Coast Research Laboratory supports research in areas ranging from bacteriological problems in the Mississippi Sound to a cancer project involving three departments, according to Harold Howse, director of the center.

Howse was the speaker during the first session of a biological sciences seminar at the University of Southern Mississippi. Describing the facilities located in Ocean Springs, he recently spoke to a group of more than 40 in the Technology Building on the USM campus.

Howse explained that the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory (GCRL) is one of the institutions of higher learning in the state. He said it is regulated by the State of Mississippi Board of Trustees along with USM, Alcorn State University, Delta State University, Jackson State University, Mississippi State University, Mississippi University for Women, Mississippi Valley State and the University of Mississippi.

Funding for GCRL is received from state appropriations which, Howse pointed out, "barely covers the payroll." federal sources such as the Environmental Protection Agency or the Department of Energy as well as private enterprise which the GCRL "is fortunate enough to secure from time to time."

Howse provided a slide presentation and a physical description of the 14 buildings making up the facility. He pointed out the location of various offices and what type of research is conducted in each building. He also showed slides of a hatchery located at Point Cadet on the west end of the Biloxi Bay Bridge and the J.L. Scott Marine Education Center which was opened to the public last May.

Howse explained the academic program at the GCRL. He said it consists of an instructional program of summer sessions and year-round courses; a graduate research program; a scientific field trip program, with which 44 out-of-state and five private state colleges and universities are affiliated.

Some areas of the studies offered at the GCRL include botany, chemistry, ecology, fisheries management, geology, microbiology and oceanography to name a few. Research is underway in areas such as microscopy, parasitology, physical oceanography, physiology and systematic zoology.

Howse touched on various aspects of the research under way in programs monitoring the Mississippi Sound, seafood industry problems, bacteriological problems, surface or tidal circulation and a cancer project with which three of the departments are involved.

GCRL publishes its own annual research journal, Howse said, entitled Gulf Research Reports. The center also releases a monthly newsletter, Marine Briefs, and the Biloxi Schooner for fishing assistance services. Howse said, "We are constantly trying to educate people as to who we are and what we do down there."

BY ANGELA AND FORD BOTHWELL

Q. The twin propane bottles on my new travel trailer each have the coding "TW 28" stamped in the collar around the valve assembly. A friend says this indicates how much I should fill the bottles when they're empty. Is this true?

A. It is indeed. All refillable propane gas bottles have a TW number stamped into the metal collar. TW refers to "tare weight," which is the weight of the gas bottle when completely empty. Add the TW to the size of your gas bottle, and it will give you the total weight when filled.

For example: You obviously have two 30-pound bottles on your RV. Add the 30 to the TW of 28, and it means each of your bottles should weigh 58 pounds when filled (30 pounds of propane plus 28 pounds of empty container).

However, propane bottles should only be filled to 80 percent of their capacity. The reason for this is that when propane enters the bottle, it begins to expand, turning from liquid to gas. If the bottle is filled to capacity, the expanding gas is forced out of the safety valve that is built into every valve assembly. The escaping gas is not only a safety hazard, it is money down the drain.

The 30 pounds of propane it takes to fill one of your bottles equals about 7 gallons of fuel. If you fill one bottle to only 80 percent of capacity, you need only 25 pounds of propane, or 5.6 gallons of fuel. Thus, instead of filling your bottles to their capacity weight of 58 pounds, you want them to weigh only 53 pounds when filled (25 pounds of propane plus the tare weight of 28).

Propane bottles are best filled by placing them on a scale and adding the fuel until the desired weight is reached.

You should also know that propane bottles, by law, must be painted a light color, such as white, cream or silver. A refilling station should refuse to fill any dark-colored bottles.

Lady Wildcat basketball team boasts all district residents

The Pearl River College Lady Wildcats head into the Christmas break with a 5-3 overall mark.

Playing with all district players, no out-of-state, and only one returning sophomore, the Lady 'Cats, under head coach Ned Eades, have been getting better and better.

"We made a lot of turnovers to start with," Eades said. "I expected that. I just wanted us to hustle, to improve, to play together. We've been doing that."

Last year the Lady Wildcats won only six games all year long. "I'm pleased with our progress," Eades said. "This first half of the season has been a learning experience for us. My players are realizing that JuCo play is much more physical than in high school."

Eades is trying something new for Pearl River basketball. This past spring he did not recruit a single out-of-state player. He had the scholarships, the contacts, but he decided to go with home folks.

"We had a good district to draw from last year," Eades said. "We had a lot of talent right here at home. I believe we can win with local players."

Eades is also convinced that support for the Lady Wildcats will be greater if more district athletes are playing. The PRC coach also said there are many talented players this year in the six counties supporting Pearl River. "Our district is loaded again," Eades said.

Poplarville's Arlisa Silas is the only player returning who was on the team last year. The sharp-shooting forward is averaging 12 points per game this season, while playing only six of the eight games.

"Arlisa is the sparkplug," Eades said. "She has a pulled hamstring and did not play the last two games. I really think we would have won that last game against East Central if she had been playing."

The only other sophomore is Betsy Arcement. Arcement, from Hancock North Central, signed with the Lady Wildcats two years ago. However, she elected to play for Nichols State last season.

Arcement is starting for the Lady Wildcats this season, but she has only 12 minutes last season at Nichols State, but that was long enough to count for a year's eligibility.

Sophomore Richelle Lumpkin, a 5'9" forward from Pearl River Central, has been nursing an injured knee and will be ready to play during the spring semester.

Picayune's Carolyn Littles has also been starting for the She Cats. The 5'9" forward has averaged 13 points per game and 9 rebounds.

Alternating has been Hattiesburg's Erica Cooper and Sumrall's Debra Powell. Cooper is averaging 12 points and five rebounds, while Powell is averaging six points per game.

Terrie Rhodes of Bay St. Louis and Bridgett Hall of Hancock North Central have been alternating at a guard position. Rhodes is averaging four points and Hall six points per outing.

Other Lady Wildcat players include Ann Caines, Sumrall; Carla Guttry, Carriere; Regina Thompson, Purvis; and Deidra Rawls of Sumrall. All of the Lady 'Cats have seen playing time this year.

"The girls get along with each other very well," Eades said. "I think that is very important." Pearl River will practice several times during the Christmas break, getting ready for the 1985 opener against Holmes at Goodman on Jan. 7.

GAINING MUSCULAR WEIGHT

"What do I have to do to gain some muscular body weight?" This is the question that is asked more times than any other when talking about weight training. For most people, gaining muscular body weight is a slow and difficult process.

Some people have a more difficult time than others, the hard gainers; when it comes to gaining muscular size. No matter what they do they seem to remain a walking skeleton. There are a number of reasons for this, but two reasons are usually accountable:

1. Genetic factors — You are given your features as a product of your parents. Their chromosomes determine your every feature, including muscular size and growth potential. While a hard gainer may not be blessed with abundant size and potential, he can improve the basics he has been given.

2. It is very likely that these people have a very fast metabolism. Your metabolic rate is the rate which your body converts food to fuel energy. The answer to this problem is to simply eat more food.

How much can a person expect to gain in a year? Most physiologists and experienced strength coaches say anywhere from six to 12 pounds of muscle per year. The fastest gains come at the beginning and taper off as the years go by. Not that it is not possible to gain more weight than 12 pounds per year, but we are interested in muscular body weight, not fat. This fact discourages many young body builders. True, 10 pounds is not a lot for a year's worth of training, but what about 50 pounds which may take six to 10 years.

The types of exercises in your routine directly relate to the level of your progress. You can't rely on wrist curls to give muscular gains. The best exercises are those that work the major muscle groups three to four days per week. It would help to cut down on aerobic activities like jogging and swimming.

The diet must not be overlooked. To gain muscular body weight, you must try to eat more than three conventional meals per day.

"The Zen of Seeing" Part II

It is a common misconception that the only way to stay healthy is through extensive amounts of exercise. That is because we are looking from the outside at others who seem to have benefited this way. Many people are able to live long productive lives because they have learned to live a normally healthy lifestyle which works for them, not because some book or other individual ascribes to it. Usually these naturally healthy lifestyles are low in combination of the risk factors mentioned.

Other individuals feel that they must atone for past "sins" by embarking on a strenuous physical program. If this program becomes a long-lasting lifestyle change, that's good; but all too often it's nothing more than the result of good resolution which may not last more than a few months, and often when not under the proper medical supervision or screening it may actually be dangerous. It's hard to do something that just isn't you even if you want to very badly.

No one should be deprived of a full active life. The chances of heart attack are 10 times greater for the person with high cholesterol, high blood pressure, and a smoker of one pack of cigarettes per day than they are for a person who does not smoke and has a low cholesterol level and a blood pressure which is also low. No one could ever guarantee you that you will live past 80, but some simple preventive medicine practices can allow you a statistically better chance than those who avoid such advice.

The Zen aphorism puts it best: "Those who flow as life flows know they need no other force; they feel no wear, they feel no tear, they need no mending, no repair." The U.S. Sports Academy welcomes questions related to health and fitness. Address them to the Academy at Box 8650, Mobile, Alabama 36608.

Hancock Insurance Agency

(Your Independent Insurance Agency Working for You)

There are two basic steps that you can take to determine if you have adequate insurance on your valuables:

- 1) Get an appraisal and know today's replacement value for your protection. Have valuables professionally appraised.
- 2) Know the limits on theft losses in your homeowners policy. Your homeowners policy covers all personal possessions. When there is a loss by theft, however, the amount of reimbursement on certain items is limited.

An inventory is vitally important after a loss. If there is a disaster tomorrow, would you remember each item lost? We have inventory booklets to help make the job easier. Come by our office for your free booklet—no obligation.

Ochsner Clinic complies with volunteer cost-cutting program

Ochsner Clinic is one of the largest medical groups in the nation to comply with Medicare's new voluntary cost-cutting program.

The New Orleans clinic, with a medical staff of more than 200 physicians and surgeons is the only one of the nation's "so-called super-clinics" to announce that it would "accept assignment" under Medicare.

Physicians receive certain benefits—most administrative—in return for accepting Medicare's estimate of the proper price for their services to Medicare patients.

The law under which Medicare proposed the program is under attack in federal court by the American Medical Association and a number of individual physicians.

Dr. Frank A. Riddick Jr., medical director of Ochsner, says the decision to participate in the program was based on two considerations.

"It's good for our Medicare patients—there's no question about that," Dr. Riddick said. "And our analysis shows it's a sound business decision for us."

"The decision is strictly a voluntary program, which each participating doctor or clinic has to measure in very individual terms," Dr. Riddick said. "Our billing system, our patients mix, and certain economies of scale make participation wise for us. Those same factors might make it entirely unacceptable for another group of physicians or a solo practitioner."

"We're pleased that we can offer the advantages of the program, to our Medicare patients, but we certainly aren't questioning the judgment or responsibility of other practitioners who have determined that it would work a severe financial hardship on them to participate. And, in some cases, that's entirely possible," he added.

The advantages for the Medicare patient are reduced cost and minimized paperwork. Medicare will pay 80 percent of what it considers the proper charge for a given procedure. The patient or his supplemental insurer pays the remaining 20 percent. Participating physicians and clinics can bill Medicare's computers directly, reducing the volume of paperwork and the processing time to a minimum.

Ochsner also expects to be able to directly bill the patient's supplemental insurer—if there is one—for the remaining 20 percent of the charge.

"While the cost saving is important, I think the reduction of paperwork hassles for elderly patients may be almost as important—and in some cases more so," Dr. Riddick said.

"Medicare's regulations and paperwork requirements can be burdensome for experts who deal with them every day," he added. "For the elderly, infirm patient, who encounters them only intermittently, they can be an almost intolerable frustration."

There are other advantages to an institution or private physician participating in the program. Medicare will maintain a referral list of physicians who agree to participate, and urge senior citizens to call that number, toll-free, for a list of those doctors in their area. They will be told that if they see one of the doctors on the list, their Medicare coverage will pay most of their bill.

Dr. Riddick says that is particularly advantageous for a center like Ochsner.

"We have staff members representing just about any medical specialty you can name," he observed. "That means that any patient whose condition calls for a consultation with another Ochsner specialist doesn't have to worry about whether that doctor subscribes to the program. We all do."

Dr. Riddick concedes that the agreement to participate in the program will mean, in some cases, that fees will have to be reduced for Medicare patients. However, he adds, the reduced administrative overhead, more rapid collections from the private insurance companies that serve as Medicare and supplemental carriers and the potential increase in Medicare patients should offset much of that difference.

Hancock Bank pays $3.25 per share

Léo W. Seal Jr., president of Hancock Bank, reports the Board of Directors of Hancock Holding Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents per share, plus an extra dividend of $1.65 per share to shareholders of record Dec. 5, 1984, payable December 15.

This $2.05 December dividend, when combined with the $1.20 that has been paid for the first three quarters of the year, will bring the total cash dividends for the year 1984 to $3.25 per share.

Jimmie Rodgers Festival

Meridian's Jimmie Rodgers Festival has been designated as one of the "Top 100 events in North American for 1985."

The selection to this prestigious list was announced by Al Elmore, acting director of the Division of Tourism, Mississippi Department of Economic Development, and the American Bus Association, which compiles the yearly listing.

Representing what the ABA described as "a rich diversity of travel opportunities offering a wide variety of attractions," each year's "Top 100" selections are heavily promoted as choice destinations for motor coach tour groups.

This, in effect, can mean a boon to the local economy where the event is being hosted.

The Jimmie Rodgers Festival will be held in Meridian, May 19-26. The festival commemorates the life of Meridian native Jimmie Rodgers, known as the Father of Country Music.

Several concerts during the week-long event draw top names in country music. Talent contests for those hoping to become "top names" are also part of the celebration.

The ABA "Top 100" designations are based on nominations made by state and provincial travel director in the United States and Canada.

The 1985 list features events in 46 states, the District of Columbia, and seven Canadian provinces.

"Many of the events for 1985 reflect the rich, cultural heritages found in the U.S. and Canada," said American Bus Association President Norman R. Sherlock. "These are regarded as first-rate attractions by the state travel offices."

Sherlock said that the 1985 selections encompass each of the 12 months indicating the fact that tourism, especially motorcoach tours, is no longer a seasonal pleasure, but one that now spans the entire year.

Except for two "Number One" event designations—one each for the U.S. and Canada—all are rated equally and are listed both chronologically and alphabetically.

The 1985 list includes events celebrating holidays, cultural and craft festivals, agricultural exhibits, music festivals, sports events, state fairs, and technological advances.

Negative reactions by parents can be guided into positive acceptance of handicapped child

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is reprinted from a bulletin issued by the Mississippi Department of Education and submitted to The Sea Coast Echo by Ms. Betty Ashe, special education supervisor for Bay St. Louis Public Schools.

PARENTAL REACTIONS

SHOCK

When parents learn that their child is handicapped, whether at birth or at a later age, the blow is hard to take.

Their first reaction is one of shock—it is not easy to accept the fact and come face to face with the situation.

Parents at this stage will often become very emotional and have difficulty controlling their feelings. They may find it extremely difficult to discuss their child with other individuals, for example the teacher.

They may be unwilling to volunteer information about the child or sidetrack direct questions. The teacher must work slowly and patiently toward the goal of helping the parents make at least minimal plans for the child.

DENIAL

Denial of the fact that the child is handicapped comes after the diagnosis has been made.

At this stage, parents may first hope that the diagnosis is wrong and begin "shopping around" for the "right" doctor or professional in an effort to disprove the diagnosis. They may view placement in a special class as temporary or remedial and may not be able to make long-range plans at this time.

Parents who are reacting at this level may give you several clues that they are experiencing denial. They may:

1. Accept the opinions of non-professionals above those of the professionals.

2. Question why the child is in a special program.

3. Focus the problem on the doctor, school, or teacher as not being adequate.

4. Insist that they could do all sorts of things if only given a chance.

5. Express hope of the child growing out of the problem if only someone would come up with a solution.

FEAR AND FRUSTRATION

Realization that the diagnosis may be true brings many reactions.

The parents' worry increases. Many questions begin to arise that they cannot answer. They worry about what their neighbors and friends will think. They question whether they should have more children, and wonder if they could have prevented it.

They are fearful about the future of their child, about the effect on the rest of the family, and about their ability to handle the situation. At this stage they have faced the fact that their child is handicapped.

Facing the fact is the first step toward making plans for the future. Parents often feel lost because they don't know what to do but feel that they must do something.

At this point disagreements about the child may arise. One parent may want to send the child to a residential school, the other may want to keep him at home. One parent may want to see different doctors, while the other feels it is of no use.

The teacher who works with parents at this stage should provide the parents with information concerning training programs, schools, and special services for the child. Every effort should be made to answer questions that the parents might have concerning their child and what might be expected in the future.

GUILT

The feeling of guilt due to the child's handicap may have a basis in society's way of looking at a child as an extension of oneself.

A healthy child is seen as a personal achievement. "Look what I made!"

Sometimes the handicap may be looked at as a punishment by God. Such feelings as "why did it happen to us?" are not uncommon.

Consequently, the parents may experience ambivalent feelings of both love and hate toward the child, sometimes overprotecting the child in an effort to compensate for their negative feelings. They may refuse to allow the child to participate in physical activity, fearing the child might be hurt.

The conflicting actions of parents may also become totally involved in activities outside the home such as involving themselves more in work or community activities and spending more time away from home. Parents may begin having marital problems and divorce might be imminent.

REJECTION

A parent may experience rejection of the child in varying degrees from abandonment to a totally over-protective concern. Parents who are functioning on this level may have several abandonment reactions:

1. They may place the child in a home or institution and seldom or rarely visit him.

2. The child may be dirty and wear old clothes when the other children in the family are clean and have new clothes.

3. The child may show signs of being physically abused.

4. They do not participate in meetings or conferences relating to special programs.

Signs of over-protective reactions include: (1) the child is kept overly neat (2) the child is withheld from physical activity (3) parents' expectations for the child are too high.

When counseling with parents at this level, one should take the approach of presenting positive accomplishments of their child. Graphed and charted data showing the child's progress should be especially helpful to the child and to the parents.

BITTERNESS

Bitterness at being the ones to have a handicapped child can often cause hostility. At times, parents may reject the child and become antagonistic toward society, withdrawing from social contact. They are often oversensitive about what people think and say, and imagine that others are discussing their problems behind their backs.

They have faced the fact that their child is handicapped. Even though this is a period of uncertainty and readjustment, it is also the first step toward making plans for the future. It is not unusual for the parents experiencing bitterness to reject suggested plans for their child's future. They may also unconsciously displace some of their feelings on the teacher.

If this happens, the teacher should be careful to maintain an accepting, noncritical attitude so they will feel that not all society rejects them and their child. Parents experiencing bitterness should be encouraged to participate in parent groups and make other social contacts. It might be helpful to pair the parents with another set of parents who have successfully worked through this stage. This could help the parents gain the proper perspective.

ACCEPTANCE

It should be pointed out that not all parents undergo an extreme crisis in coping with the fact that they have a handicapped child.

However, even these parents can be expected to go through some mourning after learning that they have a handicapped child.

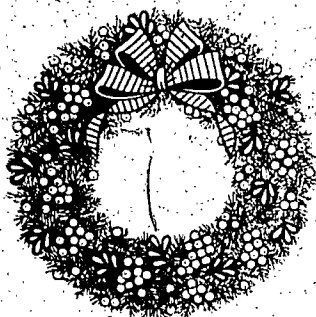

Parents at this level realize that while the handicap itself cannot be changed, their attitude toward it can. In an effort to make provisions for the handicapped child, the parents seek help from the doctor, social agencies, schools, psychologists, friends, relatives and neighbors.

Many times they receive conflicting advice. It is the teacher who can help them discover the various possibilities, study the situation, and come to a satisfactory solution. Do not expect parents to totally accept a handicapped child very quickly—sometimes it takes years. When parents realize that the disability cannot be changed, but that their attitude toward it can—then they are ready to make a more intelligent adjustment to the situation and cooperative planning can take place.

Parents who have reached the acceptance level can usually be identified by their:

1. Acceptance of suggestions to improve the home learning environment.
2. Willingness to take vacations without the child.
3. Eagerness to plan for the future of the child.

Miramar celebrates

Ghosts, witches, goblins and even "Boy George" of Miramar Lodge Nursing Home recently roamed the halls as employees dressed in costumes for Halloween.

The event was highlighted with a combination Halloween birthday party with refreshments served by the VFW Ladies Auxiliary Post No.

5931 and music by Bob Entekin and the Patriots.

Prizes were awarded for the employees with the best costumes. The judging was based on originality, scariness, funniest and another category was added for the sexiest.

The winners included Miss Susan Garcia as a pumpkin for originality; Mrs. Jessica Dedeaux, the werewolf, for the scariness; Miss Wills Mae Kennedy, the witch, for the funniest; and Mrs. Alma Rose Holloway was the hunchback for the sexiest.

Musings

With all his wisdom, the writer of Proverbs admitted he could not understand four things "which are too wonderful for me... which I know not."

"The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea; and the way of a man with a maid."

HANCOCK COUNTY

BAY ST. LOUIS

MISSISSIPPI 39208

RANDOLPH R. BELSON, Plaintiff

v.

SUSAN SPRINGER, BELSON, Defendant

SUMMONS

CASE NO. 17,444

(Service by Publication)

To: SUSAN SPRINGER, BELSON, whose residence is 4619 Western Street, New Orleans, Louisiana 70122.

You have been made Defendant in the lawsuit filed in this Court by RANDOLPH R. BELSON, Plaintiff, whose address is 11312 North Street, Waveland, Mississippi 39576.

The Complaint filed against you has initiated a civil action alleging HABITUAL CRUEL AND INHUMAN TREATMENT and seeking FINAL DECREE OF DIVORCE.

You are required to mail or hand deliver a copy of your Answer either admitting or denying each allegation in the Complaint to JOHN C. CHEVIL, JR., Plaintiff's Attorney, whose address is 126 MAIN STREET, P.O. BOX 1304, BAY ST. LOUIS, MISSISSIPPI 39520.

YOUR ANSWER MUST BE MAILED OR DELIVERED NOT LATER THAN THIRTY DAYS AFTER THE 3rd DAY OF JANUARY, 1985, WHICH IS THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS SUMMONS. IF YOUR ANSWER IS NOT MAILED OR DELIVERED, A JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT MAY BE ENTERED AGAINST YOU FOR THE MONEY OR OTHER RELIEF DEMANDED IN THE COMPLAINT.

You must also file the original of your Answer with the Clerk of this Court within a reasonable time after the date of the above.

Witness my signature and official seal this 10th day of December, 1984.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the City Council of the City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, at the City Hall, Second Floor, City Clerk's Office, until 4:00 p.m., Tuesday, January 9, 1985, for construction of railroad drainage improvements. Said work will be opened at 7:30 p.m. or shortly thereafter.

Proposed forms of contract documents, including plans and specifications, are on file in the Office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, 39520, and at the Office of Broadway Engineers, 115 Telly Road, Piquette, Mississippi. Copies of said documents may be obtained from the Office of Broadway Engineers, at the above address, upon payment of a fifteen dollar ($15.00) non-refundable fee.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond in an acceptable surety company for not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the bid, payable to the City as a bid guarantee.

A payment bond and a performance bond, each in the amount of one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, will be required of each successful bidder, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the contract, payment of the contract, supplying labor or furnishing materials, and payment of all liabilities incurred in connection with the work under the contract.

Each bond shall be supplied in compliance with state law. Each bond must be valid for one (1) year beyond the date of final acceptance of the complete project.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any informalities in the bidding. Period of sixty (60) days after the scheduled closing time for receiving bids.

Each bidder shall be qualified under Mississippi law and shall write his certificate of responsibility number and Mississippi license number on the outside of the sealed envelope containing his proposal.

Published by order of the City Council dated December 04, 1984.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1984-1C

A national drinking age of 21 would decrease highway fatalities, panel member agreed recently during a University of Southern Mississippi Inquiry and Advocacy debate program.

Mississippi Department of Public Safety Public Affairs Director Edd Jussely, one of the panel members, noted teenagers comprise nine percent of Mississippi's driving public, yet are involved in 19 percent of the state's fatal traffic accidents.

Jussely cited a Stanford University study that concluded 19 percent of the 12-to-17-year-old age group has a serious drinking problem and he added, "We expect that if the age to purchase liquor were 21, fewer younger teens would be able to get alcohol."

He pointed out that some states, including Louisiana and New York, have experienced declines in traffic accidents involving teenagers since enacting curfew laws. He also predicted a new accident-reporting technique scheduled to go into effect in Mississippi in 1985 will provide better figures on alcohol involvement in state traffic accidents.

Other resource people for the annual USM debate program included Dr. R.G. Marquardt, a professor of political science at the university, and W. Bruce Thornhill, an assistant professor of health and safety education.

The debate, which focused on federal pressure to force the states to raise the legal drinking age to 21, was sponsored by the University's Speech Communication Department and also involved questions by teams of USM debate students.

Thornhill, who was injured in an accident involving a DUI offender in 1982, said he felt Mississippi's strengthened DUI law was working because, "We are seeing fewer repeat offenders."

The onetime assistant director of public safety at USM said he believed most law enforcement officers felt it would better if there were one clear DUI law to enforce, adding, "I don't think this is a solution, but it certainly will be a deterrent."

Thornhill said other options that might help decrease highway fatalities included raising the age for receiving driver's licenses; more frequent re-examination of licensed drivers; stiffer penalties and fewer suspended sentences for traffic offenders; incarceration of repeat offenders; and better driver education programs.

Marquardt said raising the legal drinking age to 21 would penalize those under that age who don't drive; the majority of 18-to-20-year-olds who don't drink and drive; and females, who have a lower rate of involvement in alcohol-related traffic accidents.

But he said the high rate of alcohol-related traffic deaths among teenagers was a problem that "cried out for a national solution." He also cited a study that concluded that mandatory seatbelt laws would save an estimated 13,000 lives annually, compared to the estimated 750 to 1,250 lives that would be saved by enactment of a higher legal drinking age in the states.

"There is no doubt the federal government has the constitutional power to create an interstate highway system and to withhold funds from states," added Marquardt, a constitutional law consultant for the Mississippi Judicial College at the University of Mississippi Law Center.

He noted, however, that the 21st Amendment gives states broad powers to regulate liquor-sale laws.

Proposals to raise the legal drinking age from 18 in Mississippi failed during the 1984 legislative session, but similar legislation is expected to be introduced again.

Emotional maltreatment of children is a difficult type of child abuse/neglect to recognize. To help the public, courts, child welfare practitioners and social service agencies understand what emotional maltreatment of children is, a 17-month project is being conducted in Mississippi, Alabama, Maine, Vermont and Virginia to define exactly what emotional maltreatment is.	The project, which began in October 1994, will accomplish the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) Develop operational definitions of emotionally abusive behaviors toward three age groups of children, (preschool, school age and adolescence), and child or youth behaviors which indicate that emotional maltreatment has occurred 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> by the caretaker; (2) Place abuse statements in priority order of severity; (3) Place child behaviors in priority of severity; and (4) Rank adult abusive behaviors and child behaviors by four criteria: abuse doesn't exist; treatment services should be offered; services should be under court directions; and the child should be removed from the home 	Dr. Walter Baily and Mrs. Thelma Baily, national child welfare consultants from Maine, are the project directors. They will be working with more than 200 professionals who will evaluate through questionnaires and committee meetings, statements about emotionally abusive behavior. These statements will be field tested in one county in each of the five states for accuracy and feasibility	In Mississippi, the state project committee is composed of Charlotte Christ, State Department of Mental Health; Betty Elias, Harrison County Department of Public Welfare; Marty Foote, Hinds County Department of Public Welfare; Melzanne Fuller, State Department of Public Welfare; Faye Murphree, Barnett and Murphree Law Office; Barbara Rayburn, Washington County	Janie R. The State Department of Education has been chosen to coordinate the Teacher in Space Project in Mississippi.

Sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, in cooperation with the Council of Chief State School Officers, the project's goal is to place a teacher on a Space Shuttle mission in early 1986.

An Announcement of Opportunity has been sent to all schools in Mississippi. Upon completion of this form, all interested teachers will receive an application for the project. Deadline for submitting applications is Feb. 1, 1985.

Applications will be screened in Washington to eliminate those not meeting eligibility requirements. Remaining applications will be returned to the state, where they will be reviewed by a panel chosen by the SDE. This panel will select two teachers to represent Mississippi in the project.

A National Review Panel will then evaluate 120 local applications. This includes two representatives from each state, territories and Department of Defense Dependents Schools.

From this group, the National Review Panel will choose 10 semifinalists. These 10 will be taken to the Johnson Space Center in Houston for medical tests, briefings and interviews.

Based on the results of the medical examinations and interviews, five teachers will be chosen as finalists.

The names of these five persons will then be sent to the NASA Administrator, who will choose primary and back-up candidates.

Applications will be judged in four areas: Creativity and Originality; Communication Skills; Professional Background; and Community Involvement. Included in the application process is a proposal from each teacher detailing how he or she will share the flight experience with the public.

NASA officials will select a flight teacher to spend about 18 months away from the classroom. This includes about a 12-month period of public speaking engagement following the flight.

Officials also say the teacher won't just be a passenger, but will be expected to fully participate in the daily activities that occur during a Shuttle mission.

This could include conducting experiments associated with the Shuttle Student Involvement Project or past five consecutive full-time classes have verification of consent to participate in medical requirements of a current employee and; if the teacher is in a public school, the school must have an open admission policy through the local board of education indicating that it does not discriminate based on race.

Stan Purvis of Picayune and Gidget Necaise of Hancock County have been elected Mr. and Miss Pearl River College.

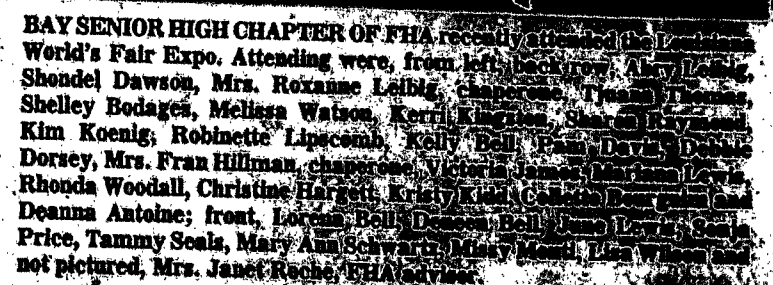

Necaise edged Cindy Edwards of Richton and Purvis nosed out Sam Holston of Poplarville for the top PRC honors. Karen Ladner of Bay St. Louis and Scott Smith of Poplarville were eliminated in the first primary.

Separate elections were held last week for freshman and sophomore class favorites. After nominations and the first primary three students were chosen from five to serve as male and female favorites in each class.

Elected freshman class favorites were Christy Gleber, Bay St. Louis; Sherrie Koenig, Bay St. Louis and Renae Mooney of Carriere.

The top three students selected male freshman class favorites were Mike Stewart, Picayune; Todd Seal, Picayune; and Scott Boone of Picayune.

HIT ME AGAIN—Miner Martin Booda, right, gets a refill from bartender Chet Pussy played by Ed Scanlan Jr. in the Waveland Players current production of "Deadwood Dick or The Game of Gold." The show continues this week at Waveland Civic Center, Coleman and Central Avenues, with 7:30 p.m. curtains Friday and Saturday. (Photo by Edith Bach)

A Review

'Deadwood' rerun improved with age like a fine wine

Cplamity Jane's Man-Trap Saloon is the setting for the Waveland Players' hilarious melodrama, "Deadwood Dick, or The Game of Gold," which they originally staged in 1981.

The show is being staged at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue for just two more nights tomorrow and Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Most of the major actors return in their original roles, with noticeable relish. The new faces fit right in; not an easy task for such an obviously close-knit cast.

The audience ate up the shenanigans served up by the Players, along with the free popcorn.

Walter Vaughn (Black 'n Red), Frank Richter (Wild Bill Hickok), and Jeanne-Marie Bell (Pong-Ping) are three of the outstanding returnees.

They, like good wine, have gotten even better with age! All three are audience favorites, judging by the decibels of boos for Vaughn and cheers for Richter and Bell.

Offered as an extra course were songs by the Sound Pipers Barber-shop Quartet and a la-la-palooza

Can-Can and Orange Blossom Special by Piccola Dietrich and her Saloon Girl dancers in their eye-boggling colorful costumes: Karen Huff, Dora Saucier, Karen Johnson, Cathy O'Gwin, Barbara Pursley, Rebecca Fontenot, Frances Mitter, Piccola L. Dietrich, Betsy Ashman, Mary Cantu, Angelique Bell, Michelle Dietrich, Caroline Adam, Margo Frommeyer, Niccola Dietrich, Monica Parker, Tomyann Fitch, and Sandra Russe.

Accompanist Ingrid Ling's rendition of "Hearts and Flowers" at appropriate times last weekend added spice to the delicious dish offered up to us all.

Overheard when leaving last Saturday night was the comment, "If laughter is the best medicine, I've just had a huge dose of it!"

At $4 a ticket (at the door), it's a lot less than a trip to the doctor's office. Don't miss "Deadwood Dick"—it's good for what ails you! (Submitted by Meta Garside)

Montgomery, Corr seek BS degrees

Robin W. Corr and Craig W. Montgomery are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of Mississippi State's 1994 fall semester.

Commencement exercises will be May 17.

Approximately 950 students have applied for degrees.

Corr, of Bay St. Louis, and Montgomery, a Diamondhead resident, are seeking BS degrees in engineering.

The official name of India is Bharat.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa,
Will you please bring me a gas tank and some super friend figures. And please bring Baby Elizabeth some perfume when she grows up. Or how about some hair or teeth?

Love,
Jody Richardson, age 4
(dictated to Mama)

Dear Santa,
My little brother, Joey, wants a tricycle and a fishing pole for Christmas. He also will enjoy anything else you leave for him.

I want an alarm clock. Next I need a dummy. Will you give me a getto blaster with one or two tapes? Give me a needle for my record player. Bring two surprises.

Love,
Christopher Russ
and Joey Dedeaux

Dear Santa!
Hope you know that I want a cat and a cabbage patch kid and a camera, and bring my sister radoll and a carriage we have both been good girls.

Love,
Marianna and
Amy Rappolo

Dear Santa Claus,

I would like a, Loving you Barbie, and some Barbie clothes, and a watch, I need some clothes, some fold down boots, and some pants, and a fur jacket, and a Rainbow Bright purse, and may be some jewelry. Please bring those things. I will leave some thing for you. And put something speical in my stocking. I am 7 seven years old.

Oh yeah!! and some make-up.

I love you! Bye, Bye,
Love, Lisa Brown
Waveland, Mississippi

Dear Santa Claus,

I have been a good boy. I want you to bring me a big foot, stomper work horse, stomper that floats on water, camping things, that black thing that crusher cars and everything you have for me.

I love you! Sometimes I call you Ho-Ho!

Please bring my brothers, Michael and Joseph some toys too. Also something for my dog Pierre.

Your Friend,
David Stockstill
